THE ADVANCE ON TOURS.

Orleans Surrounded—A Crushing Defeat of the French Troops Near That City—The Germans Seventeen Miles Beyond Orleans on the Tours Railroad—German Repulse at Dreux.

TOURS, Oct. 12.—The messengers who were sent to Orleans, yesterday, where the battle was going on, have returned. They make the following report:

THE BATTLE OF TUESDAY.

The French were in much smaller force than the Prussians, and were literally crushed by their superior artillery, and driven back into the suburbs of the town. Some barricades had been erected there, and our forces took advantage of the shelter these afforded. The Papal Zouaves and Mobiles behaved most courageously, but the regular troops fled at almost the first fire. None of the regular troops made much resistance. Many threw away their arms in their flight.

ORLEANS BURNING.

The Prussians opened fire on the town after the French defeat, and, owing to the barricades, many fires occurred. The railway depot was destroyed in this way, as well as many other large establishments.

ADVANCE BEYOND ORLEANS.

At a late hour last evening the Prussians had pushed south to Beaugency and Meung, beyond Orleans, and it is feared that the Papal Zouaves will be surrounded and captured.

FRENCH EFFORTS TO RETRIEVE THEIR LOSS.

The other French troops in that neighborhood are in a good position, and heavy reinforcements were sent forward to them during the night. It is reported that some heavy guns have also gone forward from Bourges. The French troops at Beaugency and Meung are excellent. They are composed chiefly of the National Guard and the Mobiles, and they are determined to resist to the last. In view of the urgency of the case, Gen. GARIBALDI left Tours this morning for the field. There is a great movement here of Franc-Tireurs. Troops of all kinds are pushing to the front with all dispatch.

[Beaugency and Meung are two small towns in the Department of Loiret, lying on the right bank of the Loire, and on the railroad from Orleans to Tours, and distant from Orleans eleven and seventeen miles respectively. Beaugency has a population of about 4,000, and Meung about 3,000. Part of the town walls, and the donjon tower of the castle, forming the former defensive works of Beaugency, still exist, and Meung contains the ruins of a castle also. The occupation of these places by the Germans would cut the direct communication between Orleans and Tours, and isolate the former city. Bourges, from which it is said artillery has been sent forward, is about sixty miles south and east of Orleans, on the Canal du Berry and the Orleans, Bourges and Nevers Railroad, and at the junction of four rivers which form the Eure. It contains about 25,000 inhabitants, and several important public institutions. It was once fortified and one of the strongest cities of Gaul. It was captured by CÆSAR and nearly all its inhabitants massacred. It has no military importance at present, being without fortifications.]

ANOTHER STATEMENT.

TOURS, Oct. 12.—The Minister of War has made public the following intelligence contained in a telegram from Orleans, dated at a late hour last evening:

The scene of the battle, today, was so near this city that balls and shell fell in the outskirts. The Prussians are near Galleno. The troops sent from Tours to reinforce the Fifteenth Corps, have formed a junction with that body, near Artenay.

A GERMAN REPULSE AT DREUX.

CHATEAUDUN, via TOURS, Oct. 12.—The enemy has been beaten back with loss at Dreux. [Chateaudun whence this telegram is received, is on the Paris and Tours Railway, about midway between these two cities. It lies about sixteen miles to the north-west of Orleans. Dreux, the point of interest in the dispatch, is a town of about 6,000 inhabitants in the Department of Eure-et-Loire, lying on the Blaise River, about thirty miles east and south of Paris, and thirty miles due north of Chateaudun.]

A PANIC IN LYONS.

At last accounts the people of Lyons were flying in all directions.

TOURS, Oct. 12.—Official reports from Beaugency state that the Prussians entered Orleans last night. The French forces are on the left bank of the Loire. They received today heavy reinforcements, including ten batteries of field artillery.

[Orleans is the capital of the Department of Loiret, and has a population of about 42,000. It is situated on the right bank of the Loire, which at this part of its course approaches within fifty-eight miles of Paris. A bridge of nine arches spans the river at Orleans. The Orleans Canal and the canal of Loing connect the Loire with the Seine. The city is one of the oldest in France, and is full of historic interest, connecting its annals with the Roman invasion of Gaul.]

THE NORTH AND EAST.

Montdidier Defended by the Local Forces—Severe Fighting at St. Quentin—German Official Report of the Surrender of Strasbourg.

MOREUIL, Oct. 11, (midnight,) via TOURS, Oct. 12.—The enemy's scouts near Montdidier beat a hasty retreat, today, on the approach of the Franc-Tireurs and Mobiles. [Moreuil, from which this dispatch is transmitted, is situated twelve miles south-east of Amiens, on a tributary of the river Sommes. Montdidier is situated higher up on the same stream, and about twenty miles to the south-east of Amiens.]

FIGHTING AT ST. QUENTIN.

TOURS, Oct. 12.—Severe fighting has been renewed before St. Quentin.

STRASBOURG.

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—The official account of the surrender of Strasbourg is just published here. By the capitulation, 1,100 guns of all sorts, 12,000 Chassepots, three tons of ammunition and fifty locomotives of the Paris and Strasbourg Railroad, which had been collected there, fell into Prussian hands. The carpenters, masons and laborers of the city have been impressed to repair the fortifications.

SIEGE OF PARIS.

No News Yesterday—Reported Battle West of Paris and Defeat of the Prussians on the 7th Inst.—The People of the City Resolute—Large Shells for the Bombardment.

TOURS, Oct. 12.—No news has been received from Paris today. A balloon expedition is preparing here for an attempt to descend into Paris.

REPORTED BATTLE ON THE 7TH.

The Ministry has just received the following news of an important French victory. The courier who brought the intelligence was permitted to pass through the Prussian lines:

A battle occurred on Friday, the 7th inst., between Fort du Mont Valerien and St. Cloud, on the west side of Paris, the French, under Gen. DUCROT, having made a sortie in force. The Prussians were completely defeated, and were forced to retreat to Versailles, entirely surrendering the position they had lately occupied, and from which they might have shelled the western part of Paris.

LARGE BOMBS FOR SHELLING THE CITY.

COLOGNE, Oct. 12.—A writer in the Frankfort Gazette has seen colossal bombs, holding 140 pounds of powder, going forward to Paris.

BARBARITIES OF THE WAR

German Irritation With the Free Warfare of the Franc-Tireurs—Municipalities Required to Deliver Them Up—One Hundred and Fifty Peasants Executed About Metz—Twenty Towns Burned.

TOURS, Oct. 12.—Advices from various parts of France repeat the statements that the Prussians are committing the greatest atrocities upon helpless towns. Where the Franc-Tireurs gain advantages, the Prussians have not only seized the authorities the towns, and demanded restitution for the captured Prussians on pain of the death of the authorities and the burning down of the towns, but have also exacted that the Franc-Tireurs themselves be delivered up for execution. In view of this frightful state of affairs, the Government is reported to have again brought the subject to the attention of the Prussian military authorities, as well as to the foreign ambassadors to France.

RETALIATION.

The Government has repeated its determination to retaliate for all Prussian atrocities. If the municipal authorities of Ablie are executed, an equal number of Prussian prisoners will be shot.

DEVASTATION AROUND METZ.

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—Late advices have been received from the army besieging Metz. Up to Thursday last the Prussians had burnt twenty small villages in that neighborhood, and executed 150 peasants, for carrying on an illicit warfare. BAZAINE'S soldiers were said to be greatly dissatisfied with the situation, and had counseled surrender.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Burnside's Mission—The French Elections—"Germany as it Was"—Diplomatic Intrigues—The Blockade—Coinage of the Republic Issued.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Gen. BURNSIDE has conveyed to JULES FAVRE Count VON BISMARCK'S assurances of Germany's willingness to permit the elections to be held.

THE MAP OF GERMANY.

A correspondent of one of the morning journals here furnishes the following interesting scene, which occurred recently at Versailles:

"Early in the evening, Count VON BISMARCK entered the hotel, dusty and hungry. He was attended by only a few officers. He ordered dinner in the salle à manger, which was already crowded with people. Recognizing Gen. BURNSIDE at the table with Gens. SHERIDAN and FORSYTH and Mr. FORBES, he saluted them, and, joining them, chatted pleasantly and jocularly, especially regarding FORBES' visit to Paris. Some one at this time called the Count's attention to a map of Germany hanging on the wall overhead. 'Yes, Germany as it was,' was the significant reply."

BISMARCK'S POLICY.

The London Times, this morning, has an article going to prove that Count VON BISMARCK'S obvious policy is to render France powerless for offense or defense hereafter.

BONAPARTIST RESTORATION.

Prince NAPOLEON, who recently arrived in this city, is actively intriguing for the restoration of the Bonapartists. The Emperor himself declines to sanction the schemes of the Prince.

THE NORTH COAST.

The French fleet has been sighted off Heligoland. The authorities at Altona and other ports have been warned to remove outer buoys and lights of their harbors to prevent a surprise. The United States steamer Plymouth has arrived at Keil, though that port is ostensibly closed by the blockade. Other American men-of-war are expected there.

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—The steam-ship Hermann, of the North German Lloyd, which left New-York on the evening of the 26th of September for Bremen, has arrived at the latter port in safety. Her officers report no blockaders in sight of the coast. No French cruisers were encountered on the voyage. Commerce to German ports may now be regarded as fully resumed.

CONTRADICTION.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 12.—The report that the Prussian Minister at Brussels has been recalled, which has been lately extensively published, is untrue.

COINAGE OF THE FRENCH REPUBLIC.

TOURS, Oct. 12.—Five-franc pieces, with the emblems of the Republic, have just appeared from the mint.

Military Activity at Tours—Italian Volunteers—Palikao—Chambord.

TOURS, Oct. 12.—Minister GAMBETTA has given orders that complete returns of the armed forces of France be made to his Department. He has also sent a number of young, energetic men into the provinces to organize military movements, but with instructions not to meddle with politics.

CHANGE OF COMMANDERS AT TOURS.

Gen. LA MATTEROUGE has been removed from the command of the troops here, and Gen. PALAUDENE appointed to succeed him.

VOLUNTEER ORGANIZATIONS.

Signor FRAPPOLI, Grand Master of the Freemasons of Italy, who is to superintend the organization of the Italian volunteers, has arrived in Tours.

COUNT PALIKAO.

The Government denies that there is any foundation for the report that Count DE PALIKAO has been asked to resume command of the Army of Lyons.

COUNT DE CHAMBORD.

The journals La Gazette de France and La Union, publish an Anti-Republican address from the Count DE CHAMBORD to the people of France.

The Alleged German Remonstrance Against American Shipments of Arms—Nothing Known of it in Washington.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The Prussian Minister here has received no information of the remonstrance against the exportation of arms to France, alleged to have been addressed by his Government to the United States, and does not credit the cable report to that effect. No intimation of such a remonstrance has yet reached this Government.

CITY WAR NEWS.

The French National Subscription.

The French Subscription Committee, in aid of the French wounded, acknowledges the receipt of $630 from M. CHARLES TOCHETTE, of this City, the proceeds of a collection among American business men. M. FOLY BEVOILLOT has collected, in his establishment, $90, which has been paid over to the Committee. It is reported from New-Orleans that the French patriotic subscription there has reached $14,400 45, of which $8,103 50 were collected in the vicinity. The Committee reports that the subscriptions of the French in Cuba have reached $14,236 57. The French at Helena, Ark., have transmitted to M. LESSALLE, in this City, $87 in aid of the relief fund. The sum of $360 was collected in Boston at the late meeting of French sympathizers.

The German War Fund Collections.

The Executive Committee of the German patriotic aid societies has published in the German papers a statement in justification of its action in appointing two secretaries at a salary of $250 per month, this action having been severely criticised by some of the German newspaper organs and private individuals, who have written communications to the newspapers on the subject.

CENTRAL AND SOUTH AMERICA.

ARRIVAL OF THE STEAM-SHIP ALASKA.

The steam-ship Alaska, which left Aspinwall on Oct. 4, reached this port yesterday. She bears the subjoined:

TREASURE LIST.

Fred. Probst & Co.	$105,000	T. Hermann	$14,000
Hoadley, Eno & Co.	10,180	M. Peres & Obarro	9,600
R. C. Ferguson	2,500	G. Schleisinger	1,500
M. De Alcsar	900	Ribon & Munos	170
Total			$143,850

The New Cable—Programme of the Chili and Peru Company.

Writing from Aspinwall, our correspondent says: "Sir CHARLES BRIGHT was to leave Kingston, Ja., on the 1st inst., by the steamer Dacia, convoyed by Her Majesty's steamer Vestal and the Spanish corvette Condor. As soon as the end of the cable is landed on this little island, which is to place Panama in instantaneous communication with the United States and Europe, and the vessels turn their heads to windward to pay out, Sir CHARLES will probably turn toward the City of Panama, where he will undoubtedly be received by the authorities with marked honors."

CHILI AND PERU CABLE COMPANY.

The Comercio of Lima, of the 26th of August, publishes the following "Provisional programme" of the Chili and Peru Cable Company, in combination with the Panama and the National Telegraphic Company of Peru. The object of the Company is to lay a cable, which will unite Chili with Peru, starting from Caldera and touching at the ports of Mexillones, Cobija, Iquique, Arica, Islay, and ending in Pisco. From Pisco, the telegrams destined for the North will be transmitted by the land line of the Peruvian National Telegraph Company, which is in operation as far as Payta. From Payta, the telegrams will pass through the cable of the Panama and South Pacific Company to Panama, touching at St. Helena (Ecuador) and Buenaventura (United States of Colombia.) The cables will be laid about the beginning of 1871. The Company possesses privileges from the Government of Peru and Ecuador, which prevents the establishments of any rival cables between those ports. From Panama to the United States and Europe, communications will be kept up with the cable of the West India and Panama Company, which is actually being laid down to Cuba, and from there by those in operation for years, or by others to be constructed, which may offer better terms. By means of this system, Chili will not only be put in communication with the more northern Republics, but also with the United States and the continents of Europe and North America, but finally with Asia. Thus receiving an answer to a question in hours what now takes by letter at least from eighty to 120 days.

HONORS TO COLUMBUS.

Anniversary of the Discovery of America—Meeting of French Canadians.

Yesterday, being the 378th anniversary of the discovery of this continent by CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS, a number of French Canadians, of whom there are about 2,000 residing in this City, met at Masonic Hall, last night, for the purpose of inaugurating an annual celebration of the discovery of the New World by the renowned Italian navigator, in 1492. Mr. BATCHELOR presided, and a temporary organization was effected, which is to meet regularly each month. A committee of organization was appointed, which is to submit a plan of organization at the next meeting. The committee is composed of Messrs. Henry Gosselin, F. Boucher, E. Welling, F. H. Cloutier, E. Bonin, L. E. Demers and George Batchelor. Inasmuch as the French Canadians are scattered in different parts of the country, the intention is to organize branch societies in other localities. A secondary object is declared to be an agitation for the annexation of Canada to the United States, or "the political union of Canada with the United States," as they put it, to avoid the word "annexation," which is considered rather an obnoxious term.

THE COLOMBO GUARD.

Yesterday, on the day of the anniversary of the discovery of the New World by COLUMBUS, the Colombo Guard, an Italian rifle corps, of which Signor CAVANARO is the commander, was to have engaged in rifle practice and appropriate national festivities at SHERMAN'S East River Park, which, however, was postponed on account of the weather until Friday.

THE STATE CAMPAIGN.

Large and Enthusiastic Republican Meeting at Auburn.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 12—The inaugural Republican meeting of the campaign was held here this evening. The Casey Opera-house, capable of holding 2,500 people, was crowded, every inch of standing-room being occupied. About 6½ o'clock a heavy rain set in, but, notwithstanding, the people of the city and adjoining towns turned out en masse, and long before the hour of meeting—7½ o'clock—Genesee-street, in front of the Opera-house, was blocked with people, who, in the pelting rain, patiently and good-naturedly awaited the opening of the doors. When the doors were opened, the Opera-house was instantly filled, and hundreds were compelled to go away unable to obtain admission. Gen. WOODFORD, on entering, was welcomed with great applause, the audience arising to a man. His speech was attentively listened to from the commencement to the end, and was frequently interrupted by applause. It was the largest and most enthusiastic evening meeting ever held in this city. On the return of Gen. WOODFORD to his hotel, he was waited upon by several hundred veterans, which compliment he answered by an appropriate speech.

THE OCTOBER ELECTIONS.

GENERAL RESULTS.

The Republican Strength in Congress Sustained—Satisfaction with the Result at the Capital—A Lesson for Missouri.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The result of the elections, yesterday, has been canvassed here today with a great deal of interest, and has been the subject of sincere congratulation in official Republican quarters. The latest advices received here indicate very strongly that not to exceed two Republican members have been lost, and that numerically the strength is very nearly as in the present Congress. In Pennsylvania, there is probably a nett loss of one, the Fifth and Twenty-fourth Districts being gained by the Democrats, and the Twelfth District overcoming a Democratic majority of 1,600 in the election of a Republican successor to Judge WOODWARD. In Ohio there is probably a nett loss of one. A dispatch from Cincinnati to-night says the Republicans have probably lost the Third, Fourth and Sixteenth Districts, but gain the First and Ninth. Gen. SCHENCK, in the Third District, is defeated by 133 votes. The loss of the Sixteenth District defeats BINGHAM. But the gains in the First and Ninth give the Republicans PERRY and FOSTER, both able men. The latest reports from Indiana represent no change in the Congressional delegation, while the Legislature and State tickets are said to be in doubt. Several dispatches, today, reported the defeat of VOORHEES, but the latest dispatches assert his election. The whole result of yesterday is beyond the expectations of the most sanguine, and the President received numerous congratulations today, upon the manner in which the party had sustained its integrity despite bolts, schisms, and alleged disaffection. The people of Missouri will not fail to take notice.

Republican Successes in Congressional Districts—A Strong Republican Legislature Secured—Republican City Council in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12—Afternoon.—FORNEY'S Press claims the election of Mr. OLIVER to Congress in the Sixth District, and Mr. SHOEMAKER in the Twelfth, which, however, are still in doubt. Mr. READING, (Democrat,) in the Fifth District, is elected, the majority in Bucks County being 500. The Nineteenth District, (Erie County,) gives a Republican majority of 2,000; Cameron County gives a Republican majority of 95, and Clearfield County a Democratic majority of 1,200. Mr. SCOFIELD is undoubtedly elected, as the Democratic majority in Elk County will be largely overbalanced by the Republican majority in Forest, Jefferson, McKean and Warren Counties. Mr. CESSNA'S election in the Sixteenth is still in doubt, and also Mr. STEWART'S in the Twenty-first District.

In the State Legislature, the Republicans will have a majority of five in the Senate, a gain of two; the House will stand the same as last year—a Republican majority of twenty.

In the City Councils the Republicans will have a majority of twelve in the Select, a gain of four, and twenty-nine in the Common, a loss of one.

Mayor FOX yesterday protested, both to United States Marshal GREGORY and to Gov. GEARY, against the employment of the marines to keep the peace at the polls, as a violation of the Constitution of the United States. Marshal GREGORY, in his reply, quoted the act of Congress authorizing the appointment of special deputies during the election for members of Congress, and stated that the marines were called out because he was informed that the deputies he had appointed were arrested by city policemen, who were present at the precinct in question, and were actually engaged in excluding colored voters from the polls.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12—Afternoon—Later.—LEEDS' majority in the Eighth Ward is 450; in the Twenty-third Ward, 413, and in the Twenty-eighth Ward, 170. The Twenty-fifth Ward gives GERKER 765 majority. The city complete gives LEEDS 4,917 majority. Complete returns from the Second Congressional District elect CREELEY by 414 majority.

Complete returns from the Fourth Congressional District elect KELLEY by 2,500 majority. In the city wards of the Fifth District, HARMER, (Republican,) for Congress, has a majority of 41. Bucks County gives a Democratic majority of at least 900—a Republican loss—which will elect READING (Democrat.) In the Sixteenth District, the Democratic majority in Bedford County will be about 50. CESSNA gains in twenty-two precincts 292 over the vote in 1868, when the county gave 336 Democratic majority.

Further Returns from Congressional Districts.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 12—Midnight.—In Sixteenth District Cessna, Rep., has 951 majority, and in Somerset County he has 19 majority. In Seventeenth District, Morrell's, Rep., re-election is doubtful. In Twentieth District, Griffith, Dem., has 700 majority over Gilfillan. In Twenty-first District, Foster, Dem., has 600 majority over Stewart. In Twenty-second District, Negley, Rep., in fifty-two districts, has 2,445 majority; Allegheny County gives the Republican ticket an average of 3,800 majority. In Twenty-third District, McJunkin, Rep., is elected. His majority in Allegheny County is 2,676. In Twenty-fourth District, McClelland, Dem., has 900 majority over Donley. In Thirteenth District, Mercur, Rep., has about 150 majority.

Miscellaneous County and Town Returns.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—Sherwood's majority over Armstrong, for Congress, in Lycoming County, will reach 1,000.

The vote in the Eighteenth District is very close, both parties claiming the majority. The full Democratic ticket for the Senate and Assembly in this district, composed of Lycoming, Union and Snyder Counties, is elected, making a gain of two members.

Northampton County gives a Democratic majority of 2,600—a Democratic loss of 390.

Wyoming County gives Brockway 296 majority.

OHIO.

Large Republican Gains—Congressmen Elected—The State Republican by 15,000 Majority—Gen. Schenck Defeated.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 12.—The election returns are meagre, but indicate large Republican gains throughout the State. The Republicans gain one Congressman in the First District and one in the Ninth District. The contest in SCHENCK'S district, the third, and in MCCLURG'S district is very close. In the Seventh District Mr. SHELLABARGER is, no doubt, elected. In the Ninth District Mr. FOSTER is elected by 500 majority.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 12—P. M.—SCHENCK, in the Third District, is beaten by a small majority. The State has gone Republican by about 15,000 majority. There are one or two very close Districts in southern Ohio. In the Second District a slight discrepancy in the Eighteenth Ward will require a recount for adjustment. The present figures show a majority of 1,517 for Stevenson. The Republican majority for the highest candidate in Hamilton County is about 2,500. Special dispatches received here from Highland County give SMITH, Rep., in the Sixth District of Ohio, 100 majority. In Clermont the Democrats claim 375 majority, while the Republicans concede only 300.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 12.—Fourteen Democratic counties show a Republican gain over last year of 3,796, fifteen Republican counties show a Republican gain of 331; total gain in twenty-seven counties, 4,127. The Republicans gain two Congressmen, PERRY and FOSTER, and probably lose two, SCHENCK and MCCLURG.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 12.—Official returns from Hamilton County, show a majority for SHERWOOD, (Republican,) for Secretary of State, of 2,643; HARSHING, for member of the Board of Public Works, 2,351; WILSON, for Controller of the Treasury, 2,683; for State Board of Equalization, GROSSBECK and A. D. CARSON had no opposition. STEVENSON'S, Republican, majority in the Second District is 1,468. The indications are that MCCLURG, Republican, in the Fourth District, is defeated. The Republicans have about given up SCHENCK'S election.

INDIANA.

Returns Coming in Slowly—Both Parties Claim the State.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 12.—The election returns come in slowly. The result on the State ticket is very doubtful. Both parties claim the State. The majority will be very small on either side, and may require the official vote to decide.

Indianapolis City and County.—The returns are almost complete. Republican majority 850 on State ticket. Democratic Rep. for Congress, 750 majority. First District.—Niblack, Dem., for Congress, is elected. Second District.—Kerr, Dem., for Congress, is elected. Third District.—Holman, Dem., for Congress, is elected. Fourth District doubtful. Fifth District.—Coburn, Rep., for Congress, is elected. Sixth District.—Voorhees, Dem., for Congress, is elected. Seventh District doubtful; Wallace probably elected. Eighth District.—Tyner, Rep., for Congress, is elected. Ninth District doubtful. Tenth District.—Williams, Rep., for Congress, is elected. Eleventh District.—Packard, Rep., for Congress, is elected.

Complete Table of Majorities in the Several Counties.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 12—Evening.—The following majorities are reported, a large number of them being official:

The Latest.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 12—Midnight.—In fifty-eight counties reported and partially official, the Democrats have a majority on the State ticket of 991. The counties yet to hear from gave the Republican State ticket in 1868 1,481 majority.

Both parties claim the State by a small majority. The Democrats gain one Congressman—probably two. Gen. MASON (Dem.) is elected in the Seventh District by 400 majority. The Fourth District is still doubtful. WILSON (Rep.) is probably elected. The Democrats gain one State Senator in Howard and Carroll Counties. The Republicans gain one Representative in Laporte County, and one in Tippecane. Gen. COBURN, Republican, for Congress, has a majority in Marion of 700, and in the district of about 500. In the Ninth District Gen. SHANKS, Republican, is re-elected.

IOWA.

Result Not Yet Reached—The Prohibitionists Generally Defeated.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Oct. 12.—The election returns come in very slowly. A little over half the usual number of votes was polled in this city, and as yet no straight ticket has been found. The result will not be arrived at before to-morrow noon. The Prohibition and Stock acts are generally defeated throughout the State.

NEBRASKA.

A Complete Republican Triumph—Gov. Butler Re-elected by 2,000 Majority.

OMAHA, Oct. 12.—Returns from different portions of the State indicate the re-election of Gov. BUTLER, Republican, by about 2,000, and TAFFE, Republican, for Congress, by about 3,000, majority. The entire Republican State ticket is elected. THAYER will probably be returned to the United States Senate.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Democratic Convention at Fitchburg—J. Q. Adams Nominated for Governor—The Claims of the Women Treated with Ridicule—The Platform.

FITCHBURG, Mass., Oct. 12.—Mr. DUNHAM, of Pittsfield, called the Convention to order at 11½ o'clock, and delivered a brief opening address.

On the motion of Mr. JACQUITH, of Fitchburg, Hon. JAMES M. KEITH, of Boston Highlands, was chosen permanent President of the Convention amid great applause. Hon. J. M. WIGHTMAN was chosen Secretary pro tem.

HENRY WILLIS, of Boston, moved that Hon. JOHN Q. ADAMS be declared the candidate for Governor by acclamation. The motion was received with great applause.

Mr. ANDERSON opposed the motion as undemocratic, and as preventing an expression of opinion by the minority.

He was several times interrupted by loud cries of "Question." He moved to take an informal ballot. The previous question was moved by Dr. JENKS, and carried by a very large majority. The motion for a ballot was revoked, and the nomination of ADAMS was carried with but three or four negatives. The nomination was then made unanimous by a rising vote. Mr. ANDERSON alone rose in the negative.

The other State officers are: For Lieut.-Governor—JAMES CHATTAWAY, of Springfield; Secretary of State—LUTHER STEVENSON, of Hingham; Treasurer—LEVI HEYWOOD, of Gardner; Auditor—PHINEAS ALLEN, of Pittsfield; Attorney-General—W. WARREN, of Brighton. Mr. CHATTAWAY is on the Labor Reform ticket for Lieutenant-Governor.

THE CLAIMS OF THE WOMEN.

Mr. COX, of Cambridge, presented the memorial of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Convention, with the resolutions which they had previously offered to the Republican Convention at Worcester, at the hands of Mrs. LIVERMORE. He also submitted the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Democratic Party of Massachusetts, holding that the cardinal principle of our Government, of no taxation without representation, should not be limited in purposes and effects to sex any more than to race or social condition, and fully recognizing the claim of female citizens to a share in the elective franchise, will do all in their power to place in the hands of the noble women of this State that glorious instrument of equality and individual right—the ballot.

During the reading of the memorial, which was lengthy, there were several attempts made to expedite business by dispensing with the same. A delegate moved that the resolution be referred to the proper committee. The Chair—"That will be done as soon as they are read." Mr. COX, therefore, proceeded, to be again interrupted by a motion that the further reading be done away with. The Chair decided that Mr. COX go on, which he did. At length, arriving at the names appended to the instrument, the Convention, again becoming impatient, cries of "That will do." "That's enough," and laughter and applause, Mr. COX, however, finished it. The Chairman said that, under the order adopted, the memorial would go to the Committee on Resolutions without debate.

THE PLATFORM.

The resolutions, as reported and adopted, were as follows:

Resolved, That the country demands of each political party, at this time, a bold and outspoken assertion of its policy upon the living questions of the day, and that the attempt, upon the part of the Radical Party, to perpetuate its power by boasting of past achievement, must prove futile. No record, however fair, can atone for its willful neglect of the industrial interests of the country, for the loss of commercial importance for over five years of peace, wasted in attempting to govern the country upon a theory and policy that could only be excused by the exigency of war.

Resolved, That in declaring its policy, the Democratic Party needs only to revert to the cardinal principle of opposition to all consolidation or concentration of power in any hands, and to every unnecessary exercise of power even where the right to exercise is clearly given, not the most but the least possible Government being the best conducive to the happiness of mankind. In conformity with this, the party now as heretofore will resist every stretch of power by either Federal or State Government, and by any one of the co-ordinate branches of either, and every plan of legislation which involves an undue interference with the reserved rights of the citizen, either in the direct purpose, or by requiring for its attainment a resort, arbitrary and inquisitorial practices.

Resolved, That proceeding upon these established principles we adopt as our own the resolution of our party in the great Democratic State of New-York, that our tariff of duties, like all taxes, should have the one only lawful purpose of obtaining the necessary revenue, and that the present system of favoritism—miscalled protection—levying taxes for the special benefit of a few capitalists, is simply robbery of the rest of the people, and that each, so far as the legitimate expenses of Government may require free trade, is the true policy of the country; that we demand the simplification of our system of internal revenue, the abolition of useless and inquisitorial tax and the reduction of the whole volume of taxation, now in excess of the wants of the Government and the exigency of the public credit.

Resolved, That grants of land, or money, or credit, either by the Federal or State Governments, to individuals, or to corporations, formed for mere purposes of private gain, are all, in some sort, a diversion of public assets from their legitimate uses, involve the State in unnecessary complications with special interests, lead to gross corruption, and are inconsistent with an honorable regard for the safety of popular institutions.

Resolved, That it is our proud boast that the oppressed of all nations can find with us a safe asylum, and here enjoy the blessing of a free Government; that consistency with our professions, not less than the highest welfare of both native and foreign born, requires that all who come to these shores should as soon as practicable become citizens, and have their equal influence in political affairs; and we denounce as unrepublican and monstrous the attempt by Congress and our Legislature to prevent the naturalization of the poor by multipl

France as England has to govern India, or Russia her Asiatic possessions. The annexation of France entire to Germany, and the German Provinces of Austria, will also be a fair compensation for the seizure of Turkey by Russia, and the balance of power in Europe will be all the more easily kept when the continent is equitably divided into two great Powers.

SURRENDER OF CITIES.

Strasbourg has fallen after a terrible siege of seven weeks. Toul has surrendered, almost battered in pieces, after guarding for six weeks the road to Paris—surrendered with a garrison so absolutely small and inefficient as to disgust its captors. It was defended by a Major of cavalry with 60 cuirassiers, 100 men of the line, 40 gendarmes and 2,000 raw Mobiles—not one artillerist among them. Let Paris only do as well in proportion! Lyons and Marseilles are preparing to defend themselves. Bitsche still holds out. Metz, for some weeks, is in no danger of starvation.

BALLOONS FROM PARIS.

Balloons will be sent from Paris every few days with aeronauts who will be able to descend in a place of safety. If there are any carrier pigeons in Paris—I mean bred there—they can be taken away in the balloons and bring news back to its defenders. There ought to be secret telegraphs, but every such precaution seems to have been neglected.

UPRISING OF THE PEOPLE.

The capture of a provision train of 192 wagons, by a small party of soldiers and some villagers, near Thionville, shows what resolute men can do. The village will be destroyed, of course, and the peasants shot if taken; but their example will encourage others. After a certain point is reached, the burning of villages and the shooting of peasants will only excite a greater rage against the invader. If it is true, as stated, that one million of Frenchmen are already enrolled for the national defense; if the levée en masse is carried out as ordered, which will raise the forces to three millions; if, above all, leaders of military genius should rise out of this great peril, the war will go on and the tide may turn. It will go on—who can say how long, "bequeathed from bleeding sire to son!" Count BISMARCK does not believe in peace; no more do I. It would be safer to attempt to conquer and hold all France, than to keep the two provinces now formally annexed and organized. The same forces necessary to hold Alsace and Lorraine, could garrison all France more easily and safely. If two-thirds of France is left, they will be for ever fighting to get back the lost third. Germany must take all or nothing. This is the logical result of the argument of Count BISMARCK. France, he declares, must have her teeth drawn, and be bound hand and foot; she is prostrate, but she must be also plundered and have her hands cut off. Germany is not safe unless France be rendered powerless. And what could she do with her debt doubled and her territories diminished? Or, suppose Paris taken, and the whole of France over-run and reduced to submission, what would then be the terms of the conqueror? According to the manifestoes of the Prussian Minister, they could not be less than the dismantling of the fortifications of Paris, and the surrender or destruction of all the fortresses that could ever strengthen France or threaten Germany.

AMERICAN MEDIATION.

Has America nothing to say in behalf of a country that once sent powerful fleets and armies to help her in her own direst extremity? When New-York, Philadelphia, Charleston and Savannah were held by British garrisons, and the cause of independence after eight years of disaster seemed utterly lost, France sent the naval and military forces, money and munitions, by whose aid the contest was brought to a happy and glorious termination. Has America forgotten? England has no memory of the capture of Sebastopol, but America ought not to forget the surrender of CORNWALLIS. Or must it be said that monarchies and republics are alike ungrateful? As the Times of this day puts it: "Germany marches on, apparently resolved upon crushing her adversary, and the rest of the world hold their breath at the spectacle, while upon France there settles the blackness of doom." And this is the civilization and Christianity of the nineteenth century, the era of peace and the fraternity of nations.

THE FRENCH PRISONERS.

One Hundred and Forty Thousand Prisoners in Germany—Their Camps—How They are Treated—The Officers—Men to be Worked on the Canals.

From Our Special Correspondent.

MAYENCE, Thursday, Sept. 22, 1870.

According to an official statement which appeared in the Prussian Staatsanzeiger, the total number of prisoners taken at Sedan has been 84,427. They belong, or rather did belong, to the First, Fifth, Seventh and Twelfth Corps, divided as follows: 32,400 of the First Corps; 11,106 of the Fifth Corps; 15,618 of the Seventh Corps; 25,309 of the Twelfth Corps. Although these figures are official, and as such entitled to respect, I doubt very much whether more than 80,000 men have reached Germany. I have heard it even asserted that the real number does not exceed 76,000 men. The deficiency is easily accounted for. Not only has the long and wearisome march caused many stragglers, but the indifferent quality of food during the march, incessant rains, and last, not least, unripe grapes, have caused a great deal of sickness. This portion was necessarily left behind, and it may be taken for granted that their number has been very considerably swelled by desertions. There are about four thousand officers, it is stated, included in the above. But, then, it must be remembered, the figures relate only to prisoners made at Sedan. The number taken in previous battles—at Wissembourg, Woerth, before Metz, and elsewhere—can be roughly estimated at fifty thousand men. Add to this the wounded and convalescents remaining at hospitals in France, Belgium and Germany, and it follows that the grand total falls probably little short of one hundred and forty thousand.

WHERE THEY ARE LOCATED.

These Frenchmen have been scattered all over Germany. About ten thousand have been sent into Bavaria; the allotment at different points appears to be as follows: Three thousand at Augsburg, two thousand at Ingolstadt, one thousand at Wurzburg, one thousand at Landshut, one thousand at Ansbach, and five hundred each at Regensburg, Dillingen, Straubing and Burghausen. The number at Ingolstadt comprises about five hundred officers. The Duchy of Baden and Wurtemberg have received a corresponing allotment; the largest numbers having been sent to Rastadt and Ulm. In Prussia every fortified city has received its complement; the three great strongholds on the Rhine, to wit, Mayence, Coblentz and Cologne, have each about ten thousand.

THE PRISONERS' CAMPS.

They are encamped outside the cities. At Mayence, on the large plateau toward Hirschfeld; at Coblentz, on the well-known "Carthouse;" and at Cologne, toward the east, on what is termed the "Wahner Haide." The men have been divided into battalions of nine hundred; each battalion of three companies of three hundred; subdivided again into squads of one hundred each. Each tent holds fifteen men, and the non-commissioned officers (French) are so divided that one of them comes to each tent. A commander, (Prussian,) with aids and subaltern, is detailed to each battalion. They have already commenced to subject their prisoners to the severe Prussian rule of discipline. In addition to bread, the daily rations comprise nine ounces of meat, potatoes, peas, rice, &c.; coffee in the morning and again in the evening. No strangers are permitted to enter the camp, which is strongly guarded by Prussian infantry and Uhlans. But I have made a formal application to gain admission. It has been sent to the commandant, and so soon as the red tape can be untied I will endeavor to give further details. So far the prisoners have been permitted to remain in a perfect state of idleness, but I believe they will shortly be put to work on the fortifications or elsewhere.

THE OFFICERS.

The officers have doffed their uniforms, and are walking about in citizens' clothes. They all look as if they had just left the neighborhood of Chatham-street. A good round number of them were seen crowding a café on the square opposite the theatre, and any one familiar with the ground which used to assemble daily on the Boulevard des Italiens at Paris, would probably have been able to recognize many of the habitués of the Café du Helder. None struck me as particularly dejected. Homburg and Wiesbaden, I am told, have likewise large numbers of officers; they are all on parole, and as they find a good many people everywhere speaking their language, I do not suppose that time hangs heavily on them so long as the Fall season lasts. The largest number of officers have been sent to Erfurt, a fortified city in the heart of Germany, and one of the dullest places that could have been selected, unless, indeed, they have permission to make excursions. The immediate vicinity of Erfurt is very fine; the "Wartburg," LUTHER'S Prison, being at a distance of about twelve miles. I was sorry to learn that one of the officers at Erfurt, having made a repeated attempt at escape, has been condemned to death by court-martial. He was shot, yesterday, in the presence of all remaining prisoners. I am, so far, unable to enumerate, in detail, all of the places where prisoners have been taken to. There is a whole string of names, beginning at Koenigsberg down to Breslau, in Silesia. Then again at Spandau and Magdeburg, both strongly fortified cities, there are large numbers, and, I believe, even Koenigstein, near Dresden, has been peopled by "Rothhosen," as they are nicknamed. And this reminds me of an ugly feature connected with the war, namely, the number of squibs and caricatures exhibited at all the print-shops and news-venders'. It strikes me as very bad taste; the more so since many of those pictures are indecent, if not obscene. But I am digressing.

PRISONERS TO WORK ON THE CANAL.

The Province of Hanover has received about five thousand French prisoners, and I have heard it mentioned that they will be put to work immediately on the canal now in course of construction in that province, and which is destined to open a connection between Hanover and some point on the frontier of Holland. The project is said to have been on the tapis for many years, but for want of the requisite funds no great progress has hitherto been made. It is now hoped that the projectors will avail of the opportunity offered in obtaining cheap labor. I have taken proper steps to ascertain where the remaining numbers of prisoners have been housed, or rather encamped.

SOME NOTABLES AMONG THEM.

As stated above, the City of Breslau has also its complement, especially a large number of officers. Among the latter I perceive the following names, viz.: ROBERT MITCHELL, P. GRANIER DE CASSAGNAC, CARETTE and FROMENT. All four are known as prominent members of the Parisian newspaper Press. The tents occupied by the prisoners seemed to me of French origin—probably those found at Chalons. On this and other points I shall endeavor to get reliable information within a few days, when I shall also be enabled to give some interesting details respecting the Imperial prisoner at Cassel. I understand they still treat him with "Imperial" honors. LUPUS.

TOUL.

The Town During the Siege—An Outside View—The Operations, First and Intended—Importance of the Place.

From Our Own Correspondent.

GONDREVILLE, Tuesday, Sept. 13, 1870.

I presume the reader is aware that Toul, a small city twenty miles west of Nancy, is situated on the line of rail running from Strasbourg through Chalons to Paris. When, after the battle of Gravellotte, the army of the Crown Prince commenced the march on Paris, the troops took the route to Commercy and Chalons, leaving the road behind them as far as Strasbourg, for the time being, in the hands of the French. Subsequently all important cities on the line, including Luneville, Nancy and others, were taken by the Germans without much fighting. The garrison at those places consist mostly of Bavarian and Würtemberg troops. However, for some reason not explained, Toul was not taken, whether by oversight or designedly, I have no means to ascertain. In the meantime, the French have not failed to profit by the delay; the fortifications have been strengthened in a manner to give considerable trouble and annoyance to the besieging army. The stronghold dates from the time of VAUBAN, and was so far considered only as one of the third or fourth class. But then Toul lies in a hollow, at a point where the road describes a sharp curve, commanding the valley for many miles around. Some three weeks back the place might have been taken without much trouble; but, having been left in uninterrupted communication with Paris, and maintaining it even at this moment via Troyes, it is no wonder that the position has been rendered sufficiently strong to resist the attacks of the Germans. The garrison is said to be about fifteen thousand strong, and the country all around is swarming with bands of France-Tireurs and Gardes Mobiles.

EN ROUTE.

Owing to a difficulty in obtaining fresh horses, I had been detained at Commercy till late last night. I was traveling in an open cart, in the company of a German artillery officer, who, like myself, was anxious to obtain information regarding the condition of things at Toul, and, if possible, to witness the fighting. At about 4 A. M. we reached Void, a village of sixteen hundred inhabitants, driving a large trade in ecrevisses, (crabs,) as the guide-books inform us. There we were received with military honors, i. e., on nearing the village an unusual noise startled us, and a thundering "halt; wer da!" caused our driver to stop. We discerned in the darkness two Bavarian soldiers coming up toward us. Both were entirely out of breath. It seemed quite evident that they had either been asleep or absent on a visit to a neighboring vineyard. The noise of our wheels rolling over the Macadam had roused them to a sense of their duty, and they came up at a sharp trot. In a state of great excitement, one of these valiant fellows thrust his bayonet under our noses, the other one placing himself at the horses' heads. My companion informing them that he was "Preussischer officier," did not succeed in pacifying the sons of Mars. They insisted that the officer, if such he were, had to report himself. Thus compelled to accompany them, and trudging through the mud for about half an hour, we reached the guard-house, and were brought into the presence of the officer on duty, a Bavarian. My companion introduced himself, and duly presenting me as a gentleman recommended from head-quarters, we were of course at liberty to continue our journey, which, to the mind of the Bavarian, seemed a somewhat doubtful and perilous one. He assured us that the utmost caution was absolutely necessary. The neighborhood, as I have mentioned already, was infested by bands of armed peasants; a squad of thirty Bavarians, with an officer, while taking supper at a barn, had been surprised and taken prisoners; scouts had been killed in all directions; the "Feldwache" was constantly alarmed, and skirmishes with foraging or reconnoitering parties were of hourly occurrence. Yet, strange as it looked to me, the officer refused to provide us with an escort. Nothing daunted, we resolved to continue our ride, well knowing that firing would probably commence at an early hour in the morning.

IN SIGHT OF TOUL.

Soon after daylight we came in sight of Toul. In fact, we had then come within three kilometres (a little short of two miles) of the city. The bridge crossing the Moselle lay right before us, and we were compelled to turn away from the high road toward a village named Ecrouves. Here we met the "Commander of the forces," a Prussian Colonel of artillery. He received us with marked civility and kindness, but much to our disappointment we learned from him that firing had ceased, and that much to his regret he was unable to afford us the gratification of witnessing any further display. The Colonel, an old and experienced soldier, had kept up a sharp and continuous fire for several days without being able to produce any visible effect. He had given orders to storm the works, but having only [illegible] command, he failed in [illegible] the ardor with which the valiant little garrison defended the fortress. Nevertheless they had been well "peppered." According to the Colonel's own account, no fewer than sixteen hundred rounds of shot and shell had been expended by the beleaguerers. The ammunition, however, I was informed, had been of French origin, and therefore unsuited for the purpose. For want of sufficing means, it seemed, utterly useless for the Colonel to persevere in the attack, as, furthermore, the support at command consisted only of two battalions of Prussian, and of two battalions of Bavarian Landwehr. We subsequently learnt that the siege would be raised, so far as the present operations were concerned, and that in lieu thereof the reigning Duke of Mecklenburg was expected to bring down in a few days a regular siege train; supported by an adequate force of infantry, renewed attempts would then be made to dislodge the French. We were thus somewhat poorly rewarded for our trouble. From information which we possessed respecting the movements of the Grand Duke and his Mecklenburgers, we felt sure that our patience would be put to a sore trial. The Mecklenburgers we had learnt at head-quarters could not reach Toul under four or five days, owing to the fearful state of the roads. Add to this the time required for bringing guns into position, and of placing the beleaguering army so as to insure prompt success, it became evident that it could not be expected we would gratify our wishes very speedily.

IMPORTANCE OF TOUL.

It seems to me that the possession of Toul is a matter of vital importance to the German Army, in order to establish railroad and telegraphic communication with Nancy. The cost and inconvenience of transporting provisions, as well as ammunition, in wagons, across over-crowded and much damaged roads, will soon become embarrassing. Provisions can be obtained by living off the enemy's country, but ammunition does not grow in the fields. The opening of communication by rail will therefore relieve the army of much anxiety, not to mention the enormous expenditure and unnecessary waste of horseflesh entailed by the necessity of using the high road, via Pont-a-Mousson.

GOING TOWARD NANCY.

It being useless to waste time at Ecrouves, we resolved at once to leave for Nancy. This could not be done, as a matter of course, by following the high road, and this circumstance afforded me a fresh opportunity to admire the forethought and the admirable precision by means of which every contingency is provided for. The engineers had been set to work, and from Ecrouves to Goudreville, the village from where I am now writing, a sort of road had been improvised across the fields. Passing over some little obstacles occasioned by the incessant rains, there was the most perfect communication between Nancy and Commercy. Goudreville is the next place east of Toul, where we could join the high road again. This little ride across the fields has been one of the most pleasing episodes of the last two weeks. There we had Toul right before us. We might almost, as it were, have stretched our hands and laid them on the walls. We could look right into the streets, and yet we were allowed to pass peaceably. Probably they were economizing powder under compulsion. However, ere this letter is half-way across the ocean, it is very likely that the cable will have announced the fall of Toul. LUPUS.

NEWS FROM THE RED RIVER.

Arrival Home of Capt. Herchmer—A False Report—Lepine Not Dead—Feeling in the Settlements—How Red Fares in Exile.

From the Toronto Globe, Oct. 11.

On Friday last Capt. HERCHMER, of the Red River Expedition, returned to this city from Fort Garry. He was accompanied part of the way by Col. JARVIS, who has been called from his command at Fort Garry to give evidence in an important lawsuit at New-York, and it is probable may have to go to England for the same purpose. He expects to be back at Fort Garry in about two months. Meantime the chief command of the troops devolves upon Col. CASAULT. Capt. HERCHMER brings the intelligence that the story of the shooting of LEPINE is a hoax, though there is no doubt as to the cause which was said to have led to the alleged shooting. A report of LEPINE's death, similar to that which reached Toronto, was circulated at Fort Garry before Capt. HERCHMER left there; but when he reached Pembina he saw some half a dozen persons who had seen LEPINE alive and well subsequent to the date of his reported death. He is living a little village on the American side, about thirty miles from Pembina, and is apparently in no danger of molestation. RELL is also living in enforced retirement, in an obscure village on the south side of the boundary line. It is reported he is afraid to show himself at Pembina, lest the United States troops station there may violent hands on him. He incurred their wrath while he was playing despot at Fort Garry, by giving up to the American authorities some of their number who had deserted and taken refuge in his dominions. These deserters and their friends threaten to execute summary vengeance upon the Ex-President if he come within their reach. Capt. HERCHMER's representation of the condition of affairs at Red River is reassuring, and calculated to remove the apprehensions many in this country have entertained respecting the observance of law and order in the settlements. Fresh from the country, with a pretty familiar knowledge of the state of affairs and the sentiments of both sections of the people, he entertains no fears of private revenge usurping the place of law. The excitement over the Goulet affair is dying out. The feeling against the volunteers, founded on a false report of their participation in GOULET's death, is giving place to a correct view of their conduct.

It is a fact, capable of positive proof, that not a single volunteer followed GOULET in his race for the river where he met his death, with the exception of a bugler of Capt. HERCHMER's company—a mere lad, who followed out of natural curiosity. As a Roman Catholic, the report that was circulated in the excitement of the moment, that GOULET's death was caused by Orangemen's revenge, is absurd. The volunteers are in excellent health and spirits, and their general behavior is admirable. The great body of the people of both sections are anxious for peace and the establishment of properly-constituted Courts for the maintenance of law and order. The danger, if any there be, is from the extremists of both sides. Capt. HERCHMER states that some regret is felt that Dr. SCHULTZ has not taken a more moderate course since his return, and more than one has said he strengthen the hands of those whose efforts have been for peace. The course the Lieutenant-Governor has taken, so far, appears to be wise. He has called to his Council moderate men, and, according to the account Capt. HERCHMER gives, the people generally, English and French, are waiting anxiously, but confidently, for further action on his part, and are ready to second all his efforts to promote the peace and prosperity of the settlement. Capt. HERCHMER had a comparatively quick trip down. He made arrangements, while at Pembina, for the comfortable conveyance of Mrs. ARCHIBALD and family to Fort Garry, and it is likely they have, by this time, arrived at their future home.

Winnipeg Correspondence (Sept. 26) of the Globe.

A telegram which left here at the same time as this letter, will have told you of the death of LEPINE, the so-called Adjutant-General who tried SCOTT. His death—for unless Winnipeg has surpassed itself in romancing, he is dead—arose out of a quarrel with another half-breed who was connected with the insurrection. During the Winter the wife of this man, in her regard for LEPINE, lost sight of the fact that she had a husband living. This gave rise to a feud between the husband and LEPINE, and the story goes that LEPINE, meeting the man whom he had injured, said that if the latter had anything against him, the difficulty could be settled by their shooting at one another. The other declined this offer, probably bearing in mind the great reputation LEPINE had as a pistol-shot; but, meeting his wife's friend a day or two afterward, shot him. There is some consolation in the fact that LEPINE was killed by an American citizen and a half-breed, and on American territory; for had the same event occurred near Winnipeg, it is more than likely the story would have been so fashioned as to show that LEPINE was a patriot who had been shot by revengeful volunteers.

There is almost certain evidence that RELL, O'DONOGHUE and LEPINE were down at Stinking River, within a few miles of Winnipeg, on Saturday. No satisfactory explanation of their movements has been given, but there are many persons here who affirm the triumvirate are making the most of GOULET's death, and striving to incite the French population so —— I don't know how to fill up the blank, for the authorities on the subject are not decided in defining the object, and I cannot imagine what the leaders referred to have in view. Any hostile movement directed against the Settlement would lead to consequences fatal to the French, and could not in any way benefit them; though there is no other ostensible object in this visit of RELL's.

THE COOLIE TRAFFIC.

Inhuman Treatment of Coolies on Board Ship—Their Release at Honolulu.

The Honolulu correspondent of the San Francisco Bulletin, under date of Sept. 3, furnishes the following:

"On the forenoon of the 26th ult. it was rumored that forty-three coolies, from the Dolores Ugarte, were in a house back of the Liberty Hall premises. Learning this, a citizen secured the services of an interpreter and proceeded to the premises. The sight presented on entering the yard was enough to excite the sympathy and indignation of any man. Some of the unfortunates were lying in the sun waiting their turn for washing, unable to move head or foot. Others were in the hands of some natives who placed them in a tub and poured water upon them. Several of the parties were stripped in the presence of different witnesses, and afforded a sight only equaled by the representations in the American papers of the Andersonville and Belle Isle prisoners during the recent rebellion. One had died and was buried. The poor emaciated creatures gave indubitable evidence of 'man's inhumanity to man.' Twelve were in the last stage of decay, some with ship fever, others with diarrhœa. Two at least had ulcers in the corner of their eyes so far advanced as to render them blind for life.

The interpreter questioned them regarding the incidents of the voyage, after which he asked them if they desired to return to the ship, and all who could, answered in the negative. They were then asked if they wished to remain on these islands, and the answer was in the affirmative. The interpreter was then instructed to say to them that they could remain here; that there was no law which would compel them to return to the ship. The joy evinced by them more than repays the trouble and annoyance experienced by the parties who befriended them. Knowing the excited condition of the Chinese, and of the natives who were witnesses to the sufferings of the coolies, and also aware of the resources of the agents of the ship which would be called into action to reconsign the poor creatures to a slavery from which death would be a happy deliverance, if they were aware of the intended exodus, it was determined to take such steps as would prevent a mob or riot. The leading Chinese were made aware of the wish of their countrymen to remain here, and they immediately repaired to the house where the coolies were kept, and in a short time some thirty were removed to different localities. During the afternoon the remaining twelve or fifteen were removed in carts. The removal of the sickest ones was only determined upon after a full consideration of existing circumstances. It was thought that they could be made comfortable elsewhere, and the risk of death was thought to be lessened, as to leave them was to insure their removal to the ship, where death was sure to follow. In fact, the Captain of the slave-ship declared that he did not care for the loss of these men, as they would have died before reaching Callao. The parties who interested themselves in behalf of the coolies were hastened somewhat from the fact that the Minister of Foreign Relations and Second Associate Justice of the Supreme Court were seen in close confab with the agents, and knowing that their sympathies were entirely with the 'master,' prompt action was considered essential to success. Until the ship had left it was deemed prudent not to [illegible] whereabouts of the negroemen. Every means calculated to promote the comfort of all, and the recovery of the sick, was [illegible] which could be."

ANOTHER ARRIVAL OF COOLIES.

The Advertiser says that on the 29th of August the Spanish ship Louisa Cárdenas, [illegible] Capt. [illegible] arrived in 56 days from Macao, having on board 709 coolies. This ship represents a marked contrast to the Dolores Ugarte. Although we know that the traffic is all one in essence, there are degrees of humanity exercised in prosecuting it. The coolies on board this ship are allowed the utmost freedom of action, going below or remaining on deck at will. The between decks is admirably ventilated. There have been but two deaths on board. There were no evidences of coercion in sight. The Captain states that if one of his men strikes a coolie he is put in irons; that the officers are distinctly commanded, in case of disagreement, to carry the coolie with the interpreter to the cabin where the case is fully investigated and the guilty party punished.

THE JOURDAN FUNERAL.

Official Order—Imposing Ceremonies—The Pall-Bearers.

Unless the weather should be unpropitious, the obsequies of the late Superintendent JOURDAN, today, will be very imposing. The preparations for the solemn pageant upon the part of the Police have been completed, and as the affair will be under the direction of Inspector DILKS, it is certain to be creditably and smoothly managed, while the earnest desire of the officers and men to do honor to their dead chief will insure the largest display of the Police force ever witnessed in this City. The following order was issued yesterday:

OFFICE OF THE CENTRAL DEPARTMENT OF POLICE OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK, NO. 300 MULBERRY-STREET, NEW-YORK, Oct. 12, 1870.

To Captains of Police:

GENERAL ORDERS, NO. 32.—The death of JOHN JOURDAN, Superintendent of Police, has been already announced to the Police force. By his death the Police Department and the community have been deprived of the counsel and services of an energetic, fearless, honest and incorruptible officer, and of a warm and true friend. His funeral obsequies will be observed on Thursday, the 13th inst. It is fitting, and must be the desire of the members of the force which he adorned by an unblemished and efficient official career, to pay a marked tribute to his memory by taking an appropriate part in the funeral ceremonies. His remains will be taken from his late residence, No. 34 Prince-street, at 9½ o'clock in the morning, to St. Patrick's Cathedral, where high mass will be celebrated. You will report for escort duty to Inspector DILKS, at the Central Office, No. 300 Mulberry-street, at 8½ o'clock, A. M., on Thursday, the 13th inst., with your off-platoon, including sergeants and roundsmen, in full Winter uniform (omitting overcoats,) with white gloves, belts and batons. Captains COPELAND, MOUNT, ALLAIRE and EELMAN are detailed as special aids, and will report to Inspector DILKS at the same time and place. The route of march from St. Patrick's Cathedral will be through Mulberry-street to Bleecker, thence to Broadway, up Broadway to Fourteenth-street, thence through Fourteenth-street to Fifth-avenue, thence up Fifth-avenue to Twenty-third-street, thence through Twenty-third-street to the ferry at East River. The precincts through which the funeral procession is to pass will employ their reserve force to keep the streets open and unobstructed. J. S. BOSWORTH, President and ex-officio Superintendent.

It is expected that the ceremonies will be prompt as to time. The remains, attended by the relatives and friends, and escorted by the force of the Sixth Precinct, under Capt. KENNEDY, as a guard of honor, will leave the house at 9½ o'clock, and be conveyed to St. Patrick's Cathedral, where the solemn requiem mass will be celebrated by Vicar-General QUARRE and assistants. The ceremonies are expected to occupy two hours, and the procession, therefore, will not leave the church until noon. It will then move in the order heretofore published over the designated route.

The following, who were intimates of the deceased for many years, have been selected as pall-bearers: Hon. Matthew T. Brennan, Hon. A. Oakey Hall, Alderman Thomas Coman, Hon. Morgan Jones, Capt. Edward Walsh, Capt. James J. Kelso, Justice Joseph Dowling, Alderman Edward Cuddy, Chamberlain John J. Bradley, Warden John Stacom, James M. Sweeny, Esq., and Mr. C. O'CONOR.

ACTION OF THE COURTS.

Judge CARDOZO, who is holding the Supreme Court Chambers, this month, made the following announcement yesterday:

This branch of the Court will stand adjourned to-morrow, out of respect to the memory of the late Mr. JOHN JOURDAN, and a suitable mention of the cause of the interruption of the public business will be entered on the minutes. It is the only tribute, beyond my personal participation in the obsequies, which it is in my power to pay to the memory of a friend for whom I had great regard, and who was a martyr to his devotion to the duties of his high office. The public may well mourn him as one whose place it will be difficult to fill. ALBERT CARDOZO.

NEW-YORK, Oct. 12, 1870.

N. B.—Judge CARDOZO will attend to ex-parte business at his house, after the funeral.

Both branches of the Marine Court Trial Term have adjourned until Friday morning.

The General Term of the Court of Common Pleas yesterday adjourned over until to-morrow, it being the purpose of the Judges to attend the funeral services of Superintendent JOURDAN.

A Mysterious Case—Supposed Homicide in Paterson.

The sudden death of a boy named JOSEPH PEEL, at the home of his parents in Ellison-street, Paterson, on Tuesday evening, became, yesterday, the subject of considerable excitement in the neighborhood, by the circulation of reports that the lad had died from the effects of brutal treatment. It appears that he was at Cedar Lawn swimming and gathering chestnuts on Saturday, and that upon his return he told his elder brother that he had been ill-treated by two strangers. The men, he said, came up while he was sitting by a fire that he had started under a tree; they tied him to the tree and whipped him, leaving him tied up after they had done chastising him. After they left he struggled and unloosed himself. Since Saturday the boy had complained of pains in his stomach, and on Tuesday evening he died suddenly. Dr. ROBERTSON, who made an examination of the body, yesterday, states that there are no external marks of violence, but he is satisfied that the lad had been injured internally. The case will be fully investigated by a Coroner's Jury.

Mr. Worrall's Lectures.

Mr. T. H. WORRALL, an English gentleman long a resident among as, proposes soon to deliver a course of lectures which are likely to attract much attention. Mr. WORRALL not long since, at the request of the Historical Society, gave before that body a lecture on Mexico, which derived much value from the fact that the lecturer lived for some years in that country, and was a close observer of its politics, business and society. He now purposes to deliver two new lectures, styled respectively: "Past and Present," and "Lafayette and His Times," which, with the Mexican discourse, above named, will constitute the intended series. Mr. WORRALL is a gentleman of unusual culture, long experience and special fitness for the task he has undertaken. As a well-known and highly respected member of leading New-York clubs, his social qualities are well appreciated here. His peculiar talents, however, as an instructive and entertaining lecturer, comparatively few have had the advantage of enjoying. We are glad that Mr. WORRALL has been induced to enlarge the circle who may be amused and edified by his powers in this useful field of labor.

Temperance Lecture.

EDWARD CARSWELL, the great Canadian orator, will deliver a lecture on "Temperance," in the Presbyterian Church, Noble-street, Greenpoint, this (Thursday) evening. Mr. CARSWELL as a temperance orator is undoubtedly next to JOHN B. GOUGH, and as he is about starting on a tour through the Southern States, all who wish to hear him ought to embrace this opportunity. Proceeds for the benefit of the church.

Union Convention of Christians in Newark.

Yesterday the Convention called by several prominent clergymen of the various evangelical churches, "for the promotion of a higher Christian life" met at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association in Newark. The opening sermon was preached by Rev. R. F. SMITH, of Philadelphia, from Hosea xi., 15, 16. After the sermon short addresses were delivered embodying statements of personal experience, with the views of the speakers on the subject of the "higher Christian life." Rev. Mr. BOARDMAN preached last evening at the Congregational Church in Clinton-street to a large audience. The Convention, which is attended by twenty or thirty clergymen from other cities, will continue in session today.

Board of Health—Salaries—Fat-Melting.

The Board of Health met, yesterday, at 1 o'clock. A resolution was passed requesting the Controller to place $15,000 to the credit of the Board for the payment of October salaries.

City Sanitary Inspector MORRIS reported that he intended to make a visit to the fat-melting establishments before making a report on them. The subject of attending the funeral of Superintendent JOURDAN was informally disposed of by the announcement that the Health Commissioners would attend as citizens. Subsequently, in private session, the Board considered the subject of a reply to the letter of Gen. MCDOWELL, but no conclusion was reached.

Speedy Justice—Summary Sentence of a Robber.

Yesterday's proceedings at the Court of General Sessions, before Recorder HACKETT, terminated with the trial, conviction and sentence of PATRICK BRENNAN, jointly indicted with PETER SCANLON on a charge of having robbed a countryman named JOHN KANE of $18. The complainant testified that he was attacked by a gang of rowdies on Sunday evening last, at the corner of Morris and West streets, and that they took the money out of his pocket. He gave alarm, after which Sergt. OATES and Policeman ROBINSON started in pursuit of his assailants. BRENNAN was so closely pursued that he [illegible] to the river in order to avoid capture. SCANLON was found secreted under a pier. BRENNAN was sent to State Prison for twenty years. The jury acquitted SCANLON, there being some doubts as to his complicity in the robbery.

WAR AND WINE.

How the Franco-Prussian Struggle Affects the Importations—Decrease in Quantity—Increase in Prices—Native Wines in Greater Demand—History of California Wine-Growing.

The existence of the Franco-Prussian war raises the question, what is to be the effect of that dispute upon the supply and the prices asked for the French and German wines which have hitherto been imported so largely into this country? It is a fact, much as the friends of total abstinence may regret it, that the American people are becoming year by year more familiarized with the habit of wine-drinking, and that the light French and German wines are coming into greater use every day. This fact may be attributed to two causes: First, the large number of immigrants who have come hither from Germany (and who are doing so much to settle up the wide West especially) bring with them, of course, their acquired tastes and the habits and manner of living in their native land. There they were accustomed to drink wine from their early boyhood, and it becomes for them, in their mature manhood, not an article of luxury, but an absolute necessity, as much so as either tea or coffee is to our own people. It is reasonable to suppose, therefore, that wherever Germans or Frenchmen settle in any considerable numbers, the custom of partaking of the lighter wines of Europe will become prevalent. They, in Germany and France, however, drink pure wine. They know nothing of the villainous decoctions and vile compounds that are manufactured in this country, sold, with foreign labels on the bottles, as German or French products, and scattered broadcast over the United States. Another cause for the increase of wine-drinking is in the fact that the attention of our people, in many sections of the country, has been turned to cultivating the grape for vintage purposes, and they find it to be highly profitable in a pecuniary point of view. Of course, it is to their interest that the product of their vines should find customers; and hence we see that the virtues of the native grapes, as compared with the foreign, are made the subject of comment, and the people, becoming familiarized to the discussion, become, at the same time, by degrees, habituated to the drinking of the wines which they see so extensively advertised. There is, again, there is a quasi patriotic feeling naturally evinced in being able to assert that the climate and soil of our own country are equal in productive force to those of any other portion of the globe.

It is not our province in this article either to preach teetotalism or to uph

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH.

Annual Election of Directors of the Company—Statement of the Condition of the Company.

The annual election for directors of the Western Union Telegraph Company was held yesterday, Mr. WM. ORTON, President, in the chair. The following gentlemen were chosen: Hugh Allen, James H. Banker, R. S. Burrows, Horace F. Clark, Emory Cobb, A. B. Cornell, Ezra Cornell, Harrison Durkee, Wm. E. Dodge, Alden J. Ellis, N. Green, George Jones, Cambridge Livingstone, E. D. Morgan, Wm. Orton, Z. G. Simmons, John Steward, Moses Taylor, A. W. Greenleaf, John A. Griswold, J. H. Howe, Wilson G. Hunt, David Torrance, George Walker, E. B. Wesley, Stillman Witt.

There was no opposition. The total number of votes cast was 279,422, representing $27,943,200 worth of stock.

The Board of Direction last year consisted of the following gentlemen: D. N. Barney, New-York; R. S. Burrows, Albion, N. Y.; Ezra Cornell, Ithaca, N. Y.; John D. Caton, Ottawa, Ill.; Z. G. Simmons, Kenosha, Wis.; R. A. Lancaster, Richmond, Va.; Alonzo B. Cornell, New-York; E. Creighton, Omaha, Neb.; N. Green, Louisville, Ky.; Wilson G. Hunt, New-York; Geo. Jones, New-York; O. H. Palmer, New-York; Moses Taylor, New-York; E. D. Morgan, New-York; W. E. Dodge, New-York; Francis Morris, New-York; Cambridge Livingston, New-York; E. S. Sanford, New-York; William Orton, New-York; Harrison Durkee, New-York; James C. Fargo, New-York; A. W. Greenleaf, New-York; E. B. Wesley, New-York; Hiram Sibley, Rochester, N. Y.; G. H. Mumford, Rochester, N. Y.; J. H. Wade, Cleveland, Ohio; George Walker, Springfield, Mass.; Alfred Gaither, Cincinnati, Ohio; Hugh Allan, Montreal.

In the course of his annual address, the President stated that on the 1st of July, 1870, the Company possessed 54,109 miles of telegraph line, 112,191 miles of wire, an increase of 1,910 miles of line, and 7,607 miles of wire during the year. The gross receipts for the year ending July 1 were $7,138,737 96, and the gross expenses were $4,910,772 42, making the net profits for the year $2,227,965 54, being a decrease of $573,491 94 from 1869. There was an increase of messages transmitted of about twenty-two per cent. From Oct. 1, 1869, when the reduced tariff went into operation, to April 30, 1870, the gross receipts were $233,223 96 less, and the expenses were $186,019 13 more than for the same months of the previous year, making a difference in the net earnings of $419,393 11. Thus, 74 per cent. of the decrease in the net earnings for the year occurred in the first seven months after the reduction of tolls. Of this decrease in net earnings, $200,322 55 occurred during January and February alone, being 35 per cent. of the decrease for the year. After the reduction of rates in October last, the receipts did not come up to those of any gross receipts did not come up to those of the corresponding month in the preceding year until May, when they exceeded the same month until May, when they exceeded the same month in 1869, by $6,145 07. In June, 1870, the receipts exceeded those of the same month in the previous year by $7,755. In July, 1870, the receipts exceeded those of the same month in 1869 by $36,399 68. In August of this year the receipts exceeded those of the same month in the previous year by $41,214 38. As the cost of performing an increased amount of traffic increases in proportion to the service, the net earnings did not come up to any corresponding month in the preceding year until July, when they were in excess of the same month of 1869 by $21,281 92. In August, 1870, the net earnings were $219,614 14, being an increase of $14,087 56 over the corresponding month in last year. From Oct. 1, 1869, when the rates were reduced, to March 1, 1870, five months, the net earnings were $847,979 73. From March 1, 1870, to Aug. 1, 1870, five months, the net earnings were $946,863 65, being an increase of $98,983 92 or 11 3-5 ₱ cent. If the same rate of increase continues for the next year, the net earnings will amount to $2,466,409 54, which, added to the amount saved by the abolition of the national tax, would make the net earnings for the year ending July 1, 1871, $2,686,109 54. We may, however, and it is the President, expect much heavier saving than these, for the business of the three months from Oct. 1 to March 1 is generally better than for the five months from March 1 to Aug. 1. Thus, from Oct. 1, 1868, to March 1, 1869, the net earnings were $1,307,564 98, and from March 1, 1869, to Aug. 1, 1869, they were $1,032,124, showing that the Autumn months for 1868 and 1869 were $175,440 93 better than the Spring and Summer months of 1869, while, for the present Summer months of 1870, the net earnings of the year, the Spring and Summer months are exceeded $100,000 better than the preceding Autumn and Winter months. The average reduction in the rates of tolls upon the entire volume of business performed by the Company for the year ending July 1, 1870, was twenty per cent. less than for the year ending July 1, 1869. The average expenses of transmission, per message, for the year ending July 1, 1870, was eleven per cent. less than for the previous year. During the past year, there has been an increase of 521 offices and 883 sets of telegraph apparatus.

Mr. ORTON, after reading the report, the substance of which is given above, alluded to the efforts which had been made by certain parties in Congress to put the telegraph under the control of the General Government. He showed the impropriety of such a course, as being against public policy and unjust to the owners of telegraph property, who had spent more than twenty years in developing the service, and who were justly entitled to reap the benefits of their enterprise. He did not apprehend that the efforts of these parties would result in putting the lines under the control of the Government.

A Warning to Boys who Play with Ferocious Dogs.

THOMAS DUNN, a lad thirteen or fourteen years of age, brought an action in the Marine Court, by his guardian ad litem, against one FREDERICK MAYFORTH to recover $1,000 damages, alleged to have resulted from the bite of a dog owned by the defendant. The latter and the father of the lad were neighbors in Ninth-street, near Avenue A. The injuries were inflicted in April last, upon premises which were common to both families. The defense admitted the ownership of the dog; that it was a ferocious animal, and of the dog; that it was a ferocious animal, and that the wound, which was exhibited in Court, was a very serious one; but it appeared in evidence that the boy, by his own misconduct, brought the mishap upon himself. Some time before the occurrence, a burglary was committed on the defendant's premises, and he obtained this dog on account of his savage qualities. He kept him chained during the day time, and kept him unchained during the night. Whether the boy, knowing his savage propensities, had several times before teased and in various ways made the dog furious; and when the dog broke away from so teasing him when the dog broke away from the chain, flew at the boy, and bit him severely, as stated.

Judge GEORGE SHEA, before whom the action was tried, delivered an able and impartial charge to the jury, in which he briefly recited the facts and laid down the law applicable to the case. The jury evidently took the view urged by the defense, and rendered a verdict for the defendant.

For the plaintiff, Ex-Judge A. A. PHILLIPS; for the defendant, Mr. D. S. RIDDLE.

An Alleged Lunatic After His Property.

An examination is now pending before NATHANIEL JARVIS, Jr., Clerk of the Court of Common Pleas, in the matter of RICHARD WINTHROP an alleged lunatic. It appears, so far as the testimony in the case has been hitherto developed, that some time since WINTHROP's daughter fell in love with one NED MULLER; that her father forbade the marriage, and ordered the suitor not to visit his house; that his advice having been disregarded, he became angry, and proceeded to dispose of his property. His wife and daughter then took proceedings for the purpose of, and succeeded in, having him declared a lunatic, and themselves appointed a committee to take charge of his property. WINTHROP now files his petition to have this order set aside, and to be reinstated in the management of his property. Annexed to his petition are the affidavits of some eminent physicians and merchants, testifying to the entire sanity of the petitioner and his capacity to manage the property.

Jackson's Trial for Murder.

The announcement that WM. JACKSON, the ex-City official who killed ARCHIBALD DOUGLASS in the First Ward, several months ago, on account of a political grudge, is not to be tried for his offense until after the election, is without foundation. He will be positively arraigned on the 19th of this month, before Recorder HACKETT, at the Court of General Sessions. Messrs. JOHN GRAHAM and WILLIAM F. KINTZING, Jr., will act as his counsel. District-Attorney GARVIN or Mr. FELLOWS, his assistant, will conduct the case for the prosecution.

The East River Market—Opening on the 26th Inst.

The new East River Market, in Avenue C, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets, will be opened on the 26th inst., without fail. The stand-holders held a meeting at the market last evening, at which selections were made of the stand-room not hitherto selected. The market building is the only one in the City worthy of the name, and was sadly needed for the convenience of the citizens residing in the upper east-side districts of the Metropolis. It is built of brick, fronting on Avenue C 164 feet, and on Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets 347 feet. On the Seventeenth-street side there is a pier which affords ample facilities for bringing produce to the market-house by water, and in the rear is a bulkhead adapted for the same purpose. The building is well lighted, both with regard to natural and artificial means. There are 500 stands in all, most of which are 10 by 10 feet; but some of them are 15 or 16 feet front by 10 feet deep. In each of the four corners of the building is a saloon which is to be fitted up for restaurant purposes. Three aisles running through the building divide it into equal parts, on either side of which aisles the stands are placed. Besides these there is an aisle on either side of the building, and all are intersected by three other aisles running transversely from Sixteenth to Seventeenth-street. There are numerous entrances into the market, not only in front, but on the sides and in the rear. Taken altogether, the building is admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, and will, without doubt, be well patronized.

Bold Outrage—A Woman Robbed by Three Men.

WM. ROBINSON was arraigned before Alderman COMAN, yesterday, at the Tombs, to answer a charge of robbery, accompanied by violence.

It appears that on Monday afternoon last, three men followed Mrs. MARIA JANTZEN through the streets to her apartments at No. 108½ Cherry-street, where they seized her, and while one half-strangled her the others robbed her of $130 which she carried in her dress pocket. The unfortunate woman was so brutally handled by the ruffians that she was too faint to give any alarm, so the gang managed to escape. On Tuesday evening Mrs. JANTZEN and her husband were passing through one of the streets in the neighborhood of her residence, she recognized the prisoner as one of the gang who had assaulted and robbed her. The husband accordingly seized ROBINSON and had quite a struggle with him before an officer arrived to arrest him. The prisoner was fully committed for trial without bail.

Haselton afterward refused to accept the deed. A suit was brought and judgment rendered against Haselton, decreeing specific performance of the contract. COMMON PLEAS—TRIAL TERM—PART II.—OCT. 12.

Before Judge Joseph F. Daly and a Jury.

BANKING CUSTOMS—ACTION TO RECOVER A SURPLUS ON ALTERED DRAFTS.

The First National Bank of St. Louis, Mo., vs. The Ninth National Bank of the City of New-York.—This was an action to recover $4,833 50, with interest from Dec. 27, 1867, the circumstances being as follows: In the Winter of 1868 the cashier of the plaintiff, at St. Louis, made two drafts on the defendant, the one for $5, payable to the order of J. F. Custer, and the other for $5 50, payable to the order of S. O. Sales. The amount in these drafts was erased with chemicals, and the $5 draft filled up for $8,115, and that for $5 50 filled up for $2,720. Both these drafts were paid by defendant for the altered amounts, and charged against plaintiff. Plaintiff now sues to recover the difference between what the drafts were originally drawn for, and the amount for which they were paid by defendant, and charged against them by defendant. Defendant admits the forgery, but claims that the payment by it was the result of culpable carelessness on the part of plaintiff, in not having taken precaution against this use of chemicals by writing the amount of the drafts across the face of each, and also in not having advised defendant by letter of the amount for which the drafts had been drawn.

The Judge charged the jury that the rule was that a bank could charge no more against its customer than the amount of the draft drawn by such customer, unless it appear that carelessness existed on the part of the customer in departing from the recognized course of business in making his drafts. If such were the case, and payment of the forgeries the receiver was entitled to recover; otherwise, he was entitled to judgment.

The jury found a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for the full amount claimed.

Miller, Peet & Opdyke for plaintiff; John H. V. Arnold for defendant.

COMMON PLEAS—GENERAL TERM—OCT. 12.

Before Judges Robinson, Loew and Larremore.

INSURANCE AGENCY.

The Commercial Exchange Insurance Company vs. Henry Emmens et al.—This case came up on appeal from the judgment rendered therein against the Commercial Exchange Insurance Company, the plaintiffs, by Mr. Justice Quinn, of the First District Court.

The facts are as follows: the defendants, Emmens Bros., through one McLeod, an insurance broker, effected a policy of insurance on merchandise, at their store, No. 113 Spruce-street. The premium amounted to $40. The policy was executed by the Company and delivered to the broker, who presented it to the defendants, and received from them the $40 premium and gave to them his individual receipt therefor. The broker failed to pay the premium over to the Company, and the Company sued the defendants for it, claiming that a payment to the broker was not a payment to it. The policy contained a condition, "that any party, other than the assured, procuring the insurance, either at the office of the Company or its agent, shall be considered the agent of the assured." The question was thus presented is, Whose agent was the broker when he received the premium? On these facts Justice Quinn rendered a judgment against the plaintiffs from which they now appeal to this Court. The Court heard, on hearing argument of counsel, held that the broker, at the time he received the premium, was the agent of the defendants, as the Company, by the condition in its policy above referred to, did not recognize or consider the broker employed by the defendants to effect the insurance for them as its agent; that such condition was binding on the defendants, and therefore judgment should have been rendered for the plaintiffs.

Judgment reversed with costs.

Henry F. Lippold, counsel for plaintiffs and appellants; John Henry Hall, counsel for defendants and respondents.

COMMON PLEAS—SPECIAL TERM—OCT. 12.

Before Judge Robinson.

PRACTICE—FRIVOLOUS ANSWER.

Ritchie vs. Burgess.—This was an action brought on money demand on contract. The answer of defendant set up, on information and belief, that payment of the amount had been made. To this answer plaintiff demurred, and moved for judgment on the ground of its frivolousness. Judge ROBINSON held that a defense of payment, stated on information and belief, is not frivolous, and denied the motion, with $10 costs to abide the event.

BROOKLYN CITY COURT.

Before Judge McCue.

Waller McGovern vs. Anthony Walter, Sheriff.—This action was brought to recover $5,000 damages alleged to have been sustained by the plaintiff at the hands of the defendant, who, while acting as Sheriff, seized and held illegally property belonging to the plaintiff. The defendant's plea as justification against the plaintiff in the suit was duly granted and that the property was levied on for the plaintiff of $1,800. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff of $1,800.

A. H. Daily for plaintiff, Crooke, Bergen and Clement for defendant.

VERDICT.

In the case of Henry W. Colton vs. Thomas B. Wilson, reported yesterday, the jury found a verdict for the plaintiff of $1,733 81.

After the above awards the sales of Gold in the open market were at 113⅜@113⅝ ₱ cent. There was some gossip in the Gold Room and on the Street about a threatened corner on the Cash Gold, not so much to advance the price as to compel high rates for its use, say 1 ₱ cent. a day. We could trace the rumor to no reliable source, but the fact is notorious that the control of the market is in one or two hands. The amount already loaned out by these parties from day to day, and on short time, is said to be larger than the whole sum of Gold held in the New-York Banks. If they really contemplate a squeeze in the Cash Gold, the plan of operation must be developed in the next few days, as after Saturday week, Oct. 22, the November coupons and November registered interest will probably be prepaid without abatement. Aside from this consideration the Secretary today controls $87,303,000 of the total of $99,167,000 in the Treasury, and might, at any moment, avail of any attempted corner in the market to make extra sales.

In the Public Funds there was little or no change in yesterday's rates. The 5-20s of 1867 remain steady at 110¼ ₱ cent.

The annual meeting of the Western Union Telegraph Company, today, elected eight or ten new directors, in place of a corresponding number of the old Board, of whom five are New-Yorkers, of the first respectability and large wealth, connected with the New-York Central and Lake Shore Roads, such as AUGUSTUS SCHELL, JAMES H. BANKER, DAVID TORRANCE, HORACE F. CLARK and JOHN STEWARD. The other new names are from the West. The immediate business and prospects of the concern are every way encouraging in the gross, and the new party who have, today, gone into it believe that by reform and economy in the expenditures, the Stock can be made steadily remunerative.

The foreign Exchanges ruled at 108¼ on London today, and were steadier at the close of business, several of the leading drawers asking 108⅜ ₱ cent.

After the late Boards the following quotations were made as compared with Tuesday night. Gold left off firm, and a sixteenth of one ₱ cent. was paid in some instances for its use to-morrow:

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE WAR.

Messengers sent from Tours to Orleans during the progress of the battle on Tuesday, report that the French were outnumbered and crushed by the superior artillery of the Germans, and driven back to the suburbs of the town. There they took shelter behind barricades which had previously been erected. The Papal Zouaves and Gardes Mobiles behaved well, it is reported, but the regular troops fled at the first fire, many throwing away their arms in their flight. The Prussians opened fire on the town, setting fire to it in many places and burning the railroad station. At a late hour on Tuesday evening they had advanced as far as Beaugency and Meung, seventeen miles beyond Orleans on the Tours Railroad. It is apprehended that the Papal Zouaves will be surrounded and captured. Heavy guns have been sent forward from Bourges, and the troops at Beaugency and Meung are spoken of as effective. Gen. GARIBALDI left Tours yesterday morning for the field. Troops are moving from Tours with dispatch toward the scene of the recent engagement. Later official reports from Beaugency say that the Prussians entered Orleans on Tuesday night, and that the French now occupy the left or opposite bank of the Loire, where heavy reinforcements have reached them, including ten batteries of field artillery.

One dispatch from Tours yesterday says that a battle was fought west of Paris, between St. Cloud and Fort Mont Valérien, in which the French were victorious; and another, received here later, says that no news from the besieged city was received yesterday. A dispatch from Chateaudun, by way of Tours, reports a repulse of the Prussians with loss at Dreux, thirty miles west of Paris. Bombshells, to contain 140 pounds of powder are being forwarded from Germany for the bombardment of Paris. Gen. LA MOTTEROUGE has been relieved of the command at Tours, and Gen. PALADINE appointed in his place. The French Government has repeated its determination to retaliate for all the Prussian executions. M. GAMBETTA is reported to be acting with great energy in the organization of the army. Full returns of all under arms in France are required, and agents have been sent into the provinces to organize military movements. A Tours telegram says severe fighting has been resumed before St. Quentin. The latest news from Lyons represents the people flying in all directions. The Prussian commander at Strasbourg has impressed the carpenters, masons and other artisans into service.

Gen. BURNSIDE, according to a London telegram, has conveyed Count BISMARCK'S assurance to JULES FAVRE of German willingness to permit the French elections to be held. Prince NAPOLEON is in London intriguing for the restoration of the Bonapartists, but without the sanction of the EX-Emperor. Coins of the French Republic have been issued from the Mint at Tours. A French fleet has appeared off Heligoland, and the authorities at Altona have ordered the removal of the outer buoys and lights, to prevent surprise. The Hermann, of the North German Lloyd, which sailed from this port, Sept. 28, has arrived at Bremen. She met with no interruptions, and a Berlin telegram says commerce with the German ports may now be resumed. Our Washington correspondent telegraphs, this morning, that no such remonstrance as was reported yesterday has been received by our Government from the Prussian Government relating to alleged shipments of arms.

LA MARMORA entered Rome on Tuesday and was enthusiastically welcomed....The London Times speaks discouragingly of the Tehuantepec Canal project, but believes in the Nicaragua route....Communication with India by the Red Sea Cable has been re-established. ....A meeting was held at Mechlin, Belgium, on Tuesday, to protest against the deposition of the Pope.

Wolves in Sheep's Clothing.

We have had occasion lately to dwell very frequently upon the duty which presses upon us all at this juncture, to use every effort to overturn the corrupt and infamous Democratic organization now exercising absolute control in this City. If we did not believe that the crisis was a very grave one, and that we are very advantageously placed for meeting it, we should not have devoted so much time and space to the subject, but left our readers to meditate quietly on the war in Europe. But every day our chances become more and more favorable. We do not speak without authority when we say that the prospects of the canvass have immensely improved within the past two or three weeks, and it is only fair to acknowledge that the very cordial support we have received from journals in the inner part of the State, in our efforts to promote this end, have been of the greatest service to us. The course which the TIMES has taken has met with the approval of every Republican paper in the State, and we gladly take this opportunity of acknowledging the kind expressions which have been used toward us by scores of our contemporaries. If appearances are not strangely deceptive, there is a determination everywhere to get rid at once of the usurpers who have made Justice a by-word, and spread political corruption far and wide over the State.

But now there is one point on which we must speak a few plain words to our Republican friends. Our greatest danger at this moment comes from within our own ranks. It is quite impossible that the Republican Party can go on any longer so heavily weighted at this end of the State as it now is. The Tammany organization has only been able to complete its career of political profligacy by suborning Republicans, either in the Legislature or in this City. This part of its work has been more fatal to the public interests than all its frauds at the polls. It has sapped the very foundations of political honor, and demoralized our own party to an extent which only those behind the scenes can adequately estimate. Our Republican friends in the interior of the State must make common cause with honest Republicans here against these traitors within our gates. They are even now, while these lines are being read, intriguing with TWEED and his accomplices to destroy the Republican Party at the coming election. They were defeated in the last meeting of the Union Republican General Committee. Information of this was sent to TWEED without delay, and he returned in hot haste to abuse MANIERRE, "Hank" SMITH, SPENCER, ANDREWS, and all the rest of the Tammany Republicans, for their failure. SMITH and MANIERRE have accordingly been very active ever since TWEED'S return in sending for every member of the Committee, whom they supposed could be influenced by corrupt motives, and exacting a pledge from them to vote for a reversal of the former action of the Committee. Ten or twelve delegates, whose names are before us, have thus far been purchased, and five or six others have promised to stay away from the meeting. An effort will now be made by SMITH, MANIERRE, and their brother schemers, to force a meeting on Friday or Saturday evening, so as to change the arrangements for the primaries, and thus get control of the County Convention, and carry out all the conspiracies of TWEED and his confederates.

This is one of the most disgraceful intrigues ever recorded, but we state a fact when we say that it exists, and that all the caution and address of our Republican friends will be required to thwart it. In one sense it is quite as well that the Tammany Republicans should have adopted this course. It brings a clear issue before the party and the people. Are we or are we not to be cursed with these political tricksters any longer? MANIERRE, "Hank" SMITH, and all their tribe of shufflers and hypocrites, have traded long enough upon the name and reputation of a great party. We had a hold upon the country after the war which we might have preserved for a quarter of a century at least. We have not yet forfeited it—but these serpents in our midst are threatening to overwhelm everything in ruin. Shall we submit to this eternal disgrace? Have we sunk to be such poltroons as that men like MANIERRE, SMITH, ANDREWS, and the like can drag us through the lowest depth of baseness which TWEED and his fellow swindlers may prepare for us, without a single effort on our parts to avert the unspeakable degradation? It is impossible that a party, with a glorious past to encourage it, can be thus shattered in pieces by a herd of double-tongued knaves, who care as little for country or party as they do for their own honor. Their hour has come. Let them hold the meeting they talk about, or attempt to carry out their projects, and they will find a storm of indignation beating about their ears which even their audacity will not enable them to face.

These men would not be employed by the Ring if they were not doing the work of the Ring. What does TWEED want them for? To checkmate him in his detestable game? To draw their money for doing nothing? To amuse him in those hours of leisure which his own paper tells us he employs in punch-swilling? He would not pay them for doing any of these things. They earn their money by doing his dirty work—by bringing shame and disgrace upon a party which a few short years ago saved the country from the most appalling danger which ever threatened a great people. Actively or passively, these Tammany Republicans are obeying the commands of TWEED, SWEENY, and the rest; and yet that deplorable mockery, the Citizens' Association, dares to tell the public that its suborned agent, NATHANIEL SANDS, is still entitled to confidence. Whose confidence? Not that of Republicans. Not that of any man who earnestly desires to see the Tammany faction swept to destruction. These dissemblers must be thrust out of the party, and now is the time to do it. Everywhere Republicans must repudiate them. They have no business under our flag. Let them take their bodies where they have already taken their souls—to the Tammany sty, where among turncoats and political sharpers they may wallow in congenial company.

Mr. Tweed and his Defender.

We have already used Mr. TILDEN as an illustration of the uselessness of expecting any vigorous efforts for reform from the Democratic Party. When a man like Mr. SAMUEL TILDEN is content to go up to Rochester and act as fugleman for TWEED, in a Convention "largely made up of City thieves and bullies," the case seems, it must be admitted, very hopeless. But some unsophisticated Democrat may still flatter himself that, although individual politicians may prove faithless, he can always look, if the worst comes to the worst, to the party Press for enlightenment as to the real character of the men who ask him to intrust his purse and his person to their keeping.

It is now our painful duty to point out to him how very futile this expectation is, and it is with the deepest pain that we find ourselves obliged to use, as an illustration of what we mean, that unfortunate paper, the World. A more wholesome course of reading than the columns of that paper afforded, in the shape of comments on the City Government, in last March and April, it would be difficult to put into the hands of a young man. It furnished one of the most vigorous exposures of the personnel of the Ring we have yet had, and the exposure was doubly valuable as coming from gentlemen who had seen the Ring off their guard. Other papers have told about the peculations of the Ring, about the way in which they steal, and the probable amount of their thefts; but the World first gave us an inkling of what manner of men they are personally, and gave it with an authority which nobody has ever ventured to dispute.

There was a good deal of controversy during last Winter as to whether or not there had been cheating at the polls. The Republicans said there had; the Democrats said there had not—or nothing to speak of; and, although a Congressional Committee, and a Committee of the Union League Club, went to Washington to collect evidence, and did collect more than enough to prove that the frauds had been shocking, nevertheless their word was likely to make comparatively little impression on the public mind. Then the editor of the World came to the rescue, and testified voluntarily in his paper that he had himself seen the "shameless frauds" at the polls, naming the persons who were instrumental in procuring their perpetration—the illustrious TWEED, we need hardly say, being among the number. From that moment the World, for about a month, did yeoman's service for reform. From it the public first heard some of the most interesting particulars of TWEED'S personal history. It told how he was a bankrupt chairmaker when he went into politics, about twelve years ago; how he then took to stealing the public money, and stole steadily, till he is now in possession, according to the World's estimate, of from five to ten million dollars. It frankly confessed that it was not able to estimate more closely, owing to TWEED'S failure even to make any return to the Assessor of the income tax, a peculiarity which the great man shares with all the principal thieves of the Ring, and their advocates. Our candid contemporary then gave us certain details of great interest about TWEED'S private affairs, which, indeed, as they relate solely to his various ways of disposing of money obtained by fraud, are no more "private" than the details of any series of robberies exposed in evidence in the Court of General Sessions. It showed us how he had a "gorgeous house" in town, a "sumptuous seat in the country," "a stud of horses, and a set of palatial stables." In these stables, it mentioned, he is in the habit of "spending his Sundays drinking punch," but it was careful to add that this employment was far "more innocuous than his usual course of life." It also showed, with great force, that to enable him and his confederates to continue their knavish courses, they put their own creatures on the Judicial Bench, and introduced the grossest frauds into the elections. It declared that Mr. TWEED'S robberies were as "boundless in their sum as in their ingenuity." It spoke of the "presents unconsciously made him by the tax-payers of New-York," and it said that his "palatial" houses "as plainly show forth the gratitude of New-York to its TWEED, as does Blenheim the gratitude of England to MARLBOROUGH, or Strathfieldsaye to WELLINGTON."

Now it looked after all this as if TWEED'S reign was near its end—as if honest and intelligent Democrats, like Mr. SAMUEL TILDEN, were going to rise up against him and dethrone him; and there ran through the community a thrill of excitement such as nothing in City politics had been able to produce in many a long day. But now mark what followed. TWEED went up to Albany, overthrew his opponents, the "Young Democracy," and then came back, and turned his attention to the World. What happened between him and it, during the Summer months, nobody but the parties chiefly concerned know, and probably nobody will ever know. Suffice it to say, that all opposition to TWEED and the Tweedites, on the part of the World, ceased as if by magic. Outsiders can only guess at the nature of the process by which this "silence deep as death" was secured. TWEED certainly did not sing or fiddle to the editor of the World, for he is not musical; and he did not read him an original poem, for he can barely write his name; he did not dance to him, for the Sunday punch and other luxuries have brought his dancing days to an untimely close; he did not convince him by argument, for TWEED is not eloquent; and the facts, the sorrowful facts remain. The horses still stamped in "the political stables;" other blackguards and thieves of the City Hall, and even their Jeremy Diddler advocates, still congregated in "the gorgeous town-house" and the sumptuous country seat—probably taking care to lay their hands on any "portable property" they could find. What, then, did TWEED do to mesmerize his former assailant? And what does TWEED possess that a nimble-fingered advocate can possibly desire? Not his company, certainly—for TWEED is not entertaining; nor his punch, for one jorum of "the Sunday punch" would probably upset more delicate brains for a full week. In fact, the more one thinks of the affair, the more mysterious it seems. It is made all the more mysterious because, whatever it was that TWEED did, it not only secured our contemporary's silence, but converted him into an ardent defender of a man whom it denounced five short months previously as a swindler and thief, a corrupter of Judges, and a bankrupt—not of him only, but of the system under which he cheats and steals, and of the luxuries procured by his thefts. Who can account for this transformation? "Set a thief to catch a thief" is an old proverb. Does the principle apply to the science of defending thieves after they are caught?

The Elections of Tuesday.

Previous to the State elections which took place on Tuesday, the Democratic Press everywhere filled the double rôle of accuser and prophet. The Republican majority in Congress and the Administration had, it said, done nothing that was good, but everything that was evil. Reconstruction was assailed, and often repudiated, the financial policy of the country was ridiculed, and, in short, there was no measure or act of the Republican Party which did not furnish the text for complaint and reproaches. Added to this were assertions that the country had lost faith in the Government and the Republican leaders, and that the Democratic opportunity was at hand. There was to be a grand uprising of Democratic strength, by which the Republican majority would be swept out of existence. On the ground of a common humanity, we cannot but sympathize with the distress which these oracles must suffer in contemplating the fate of their own predictions.

Sufficient returns are received to enable us to judge of the actual results of these elections. Pennsylvania Republicans came off with flying colors. The Twelfth District elects a Republican—S. D. SHOEMAKER—although it had been Democratic for years. NEGLEY, the Republican candidate in the Twenty-second, defeats HOPKINS, Democrat, by a large majority. Republican victories are claimed in the Third, Fourth and Fifth Districts. Mr. MORRELL is most probably elected, and PACKER, of the Fourteenth, is re-elected—in fact, there is an average gain in the State. Philadelphia was the scene of an excitement which is disgraceful to the Democrats, who attempted, in one district to interfere with the colored vote. Of course, due measures were taken to frustrate the scandalous proceeding, and the polls were protected. It may be noted as an indication of improved sentiment in that city, that a Republican majority for Sheriff was cast, while two years ago a Democratic Mayor was elected. In Ohio, the returns indicate large Republican gains throughout the State. One Congressman is gained in the First and one in the Ninth District. The vote in Iowa, so far as we know at present, is not heavy, but the Republican majorities are increased in proportion to the whole vote. The same may be said of Indiana, although the figures are meagre thus far. The colored voters in all these States brought additional strength to the Republican Party, as was to be expected of men who understand the hostility toward them evinced by the Democrats. In a day or two the receipt of fuller returns and particulars will render some analysis on this and other points possible.

Enough, however, is shown to convince the Democratic Party everywhere of the extreme folly of its present course. It has persisted in errors which the common sense of the whole country condemned. It would reverse all the work of national legislation, and undo the real progress upon which the Government and Congress have been engaged. The people feel that they cannot and will not tolerate this. The Democratic Party is identified with disloyalty and corruption. Suppose, for one moment, that the New-York Ring were repeated on a great scale in our national affairs—can any one doubt what would come of it? And yet that is what the Democratic Party would do, among other things, if it realized those "Democratic gains" which were prophesied. The best members of the Democracy protest against the burdens of dishonor by which their cause is rendered hopeless. The wisest course open to them now is to use their judgment independently, and in the elections yet to come, to support candidates of whom they need not be ashamed.

Horseback Riding.

The popular taste for driving, like most other popular tastes, has run into extravagance. The sober buggy and four minute trotter wherewith the frugal youth of twenty years ago was content to scatter the Olympic dust of the Bloomingdale road, today would be laughed to scorn. Only the lightest of road wagons or the heaviest of dog-carts, with at least a pair of thorough-breds, that will do their mile among the forties, can satisfy the tastes of the horse-taming Hector of the period. These represent the very modesty of his fancy. His dissipation vents itself in English drags and wonderful char-à-bancs, and imported landaus with spike teams or matched four-in-hands. A moment of supreme inspiration even lent to our streets the unwonted joy of an English stage-coach with all its appointments. So general is this mania for driving that, with a large and increasing class, social consideration bases itself on horse-flesh, and a stable, as Mr. TWEED might tell us, is rapidly getting to be as essential an attribute of gentility as a house. To a whimsical fancy it would almost seem that SWIFT'S fable were being verified, and that the Houyhnhnms had at last vindicated their superiority. A fine horse attracts in most cases more attention than his owner. The wealthy, whose affluence and virtues once nourished a perennial Jenkins, now appear in his delightful correspondence only as adjuncts, or as trappings, so to speak, for their steeds. These the veracious chronicler is never tired of trotting out for the delectation of his readers; he puts them through their paces; he calls attention to their points with the pride and skill of a veteran jockey; he marshals them in long procession, and his Catalogue of the Horses eclipses the Catalogue of the Ships.

In one respect this devotion to driving is well enough. At least it brings people into the open air, and gives them a certain amount of exercise, with just that dash of excitement which Americans must have to make recreation palatable. But it is to be regretted that it is tending to degrade the horse from his finest purpose, and to make the witchery of noble horsemanship a lost art among our people. Considering the many attractions of riding, not to speak of its healthfulness, it is hard to understand its disuse. A canter through the bridle-path of the Central Park on one of these glorious October mornings, which are a perpetual contradiction to the libel of the poet, is a pleasure sufficient to transfigure and brighten a whole day of toil—a delight and a memory forever. No exercise is more invigorating than this; no amusement has more fascination for those who have learned to appreciate it. A good rider of either sex nowhere appears to better advantage than in the saddle, and even an awkward person may be made to seem graceful by the skillful handling of a spirited steed. It is an accomplishment easy of mastery to all, asking only practice and patience for its thorough acquisition. Yet with all these arguments of pleasure, healthfulness, facility, and even vanity, to plead for it, equestrianism is, in this part of the country at least, the science of the few. As a social fact, as an element of social enjoyment, we may safely say it is generally ignored. Four and six-in-hands, with flaming harness and flaunting liveries, fill the roads and monopolize the devotion of our sportsmen, while spur and saddle are curiosities in the shop windows. Even in the rural districts riding is but little more in vogue than in the cities. An American farmer never walks out to traverse a distance of only a mile; it is the buggy that is "hitched up," and not the horse that is saddled. It was this fact which gave to the Southern cavalry so decided a superiority in the late war, and so far as the North is concerned, will always leave our armies deficient in this branch of the service.

For this reason, the establishment of racing-parks throughout the country, since they tend to give an impulse to equestrianism, is deserving of all encouragement. Already in the near vicinity of New-York we have four—Jerome, Prospect and Monmouth Parks, and the track at Saratoga. Their management since their opening has been in all respects creditable, and they must exert a favorable influence on the future of the American running horse. It is only another proof of our abject worship of utility that we have so long cherished the trotting horse to the detriment of his nobler brother. In this, as in other things, we are learning that grace and beauty also have their uses.

Orleans in possession of the Prussians is another vital blow to France. On Monday a battle was fought about twelve miles north of the city, and on the skirts of the forest which environs it. The defeated French General was on Tuesday driven out of the forest which he had vowed to defend "at any cost." The victorious Prussians followed up their success to the suburbs of the city. Barricades had been erected, behind which the beaten troops took refuge, but the fire of the Prussian cannon proved too much for them, and as they went out and made their retreat by the left bank of the Loire, the Prussians went in, and now hold possession of the fifth in importance of the great cities of France. With a characteristic energy contrasting strongly with the lax combinations of the French troops, the invaders have already advanced about twenty miles on their way to Tours, following the line of the Loire and the railroad connecting the two cities. An early removal of the Provisional Government into Normandy or Brittany may, therefore, be expected.

At a time like this, would anybody but Mr. TWEED be daring enough to commit a fresh fraud in company with JAMES FISK, Jr.? Would not common prudence and ordinary respect for his decent supporters—men like Mr. SAMUEL TILDEN—suggest to him the propriety of refraining from committing a fresh outrage upon the public? One might have supposed so—but adventurers like TWEED and FISK invent a special code of laws for the regulation of their lives. A shameful and reckless act of swindling was perpetrated at the expense of Erie stockholders on Tuesday. A packed meeting was held, honest shareholders excluded, and every arrangement made for keeping the Erie Road in the hands of FISK and his accomplices. And TWEED had the audacity to preside over this most scandalous meeting! His creature, Gov. HOFFMAN, will probably participate in the profits of the transaction. Can the respectable portion of this community allow such a gang to retain possession of all the chief offices in the City, and too many of them in the State?

The satellites of the Ring are flattering themselves that Sheriff O'BRIEN will not support the ticket of the Young Democracy, because he did not get the nomination for Mayor, and that, therefore, the movement against the Ring will amount to nothing. As far as regards Sheriff O'BRIEN, even if he were not animated by principle in his warfare upon the Ring, he has sagacity enough to see that his political future lies in the success of the Anti-Ring movement. If Mr. O'BRIEN were not faithful to his pledges now—as we have no doubt he will be—there would not be much ground left for him to stand upon. The champions of TWEED, SWEENY & Co., however, will find out before election day, that this is not a movement of any one man, but of the people, and that the people would be perfectly well able to carry it on, even if Mr. O'BRIEN were to withdraw from it—which is be not likely to do.

There is a very able article in the current number of Harper's Weekly on Gov. HOFFMAN and his doings. If anybody should happen to be still in doubt about the true nature of Gov. HOFFMAN'S connection with the Erie Ring, he cannot do better than sit down to a calm perusal of the article in question. We are glad to find our contemporary thus throwing the weight of its influence so decidedly into the scale of right and justice—better cause no journalist ever labored in. With regard to our own share in the contest, we may, perhaps, be allowed to quote the following from Harper's Weekly:

AN UNSAVORY FEAST.—The NEW-YORK TIMES is doing noble service in its trenchant attacks upon the Tammany Ring—a service which is in the interest of every honest voter in the State and the country. The perilous power of the Ring is seen in nothing more clearly than in its total subjugation of the World, which is effectively and conclusively exposed by the TIMES. Last Winter when the World declared what it ludicrously called "war to the knife" against the Ring, there were many persons who believed that it had sufficient character and regard for the public welfare to persist in its warfare, and that there were honest Democrats enough to support it. The Ring, however, has not only silenced the opposition of the World, but it compels it to eat its own words in public every day; and the TIMES vigorously takes care that the moral of that feast shall not be lost upon the spectators.

If a man gives $5,000, say, for a box at the opera, the price at which a second-class one is at this moment to be bought, he finds himself in this position: for nine or ten months in the year the house is closed, or open only for entertainments which he does not care to go and see. One day an entertainment which he does take an interest in is announced, and forthwith some one tells him, "You must give up all your rights." He objects, and asks, "Am I, then, to have nothing for my money?" The projectors of the entertainment merely reply by denouncing him as a mean and avaricious creature, and declare that he is depriving the town of a great treat—acting, in fact, like the dog in the manger, celebrated in the fable. Perhaps this is all right, only it doesn't look so at the first glance.

The nature of the appeals made to the peasantry of France, to rise in defense of their hearths and homes, gives but a sorry impression of their understanding, or the patriotism of men to whom such appeals are necessary. There is a good deal too much of an attempt to arouse the worst kind of religious fanaticism, and a good deal too much of a hobgoblin species of reference to the atrocities that may be expected of the invaders. The authors of these addresses never seem to have contemplated the danger of the ingenuous French rustics finding the Uhlans not half so bad as they are painted. Suppose the inhabitants of a village in Touraine, or Poitou, discover that the Germans, instead of demolishing the statues of the Virgin, are quite as forward to pay their devotions to her as themselves, and that nothing is further from their thoughts than license or pillage—they will not unnaturally conclude that, having been duped by their superiors on this point, the entire struggle is fraudulently continued for the benefit of some parties unknown. In the allied German Armies, nearly every third man is a Roman Catholic, and their discipline is too strict to admit of systematic lawlessness, even were they so disposed. Taking into account the character of the French peasantry, the result indicated is, therefore, far from improbable.

Preceding the crushing defeats on the Loire, there seems to have been a French success on Friday before Paris. It becomes, however, more and more difficult to see what relief the Departments are to gain from any such prolongation of the siege. The heights between St. Cloud and Fort Mont Valerian are certainly of the first importance in respect to being a highly effective point for the bombardment of the capital. But if the provincial towns and districts of France show no greater capacity than they are doing for their own defense, the possession of these or any other point of attack cannot very materially affect the rapid exhaustion and virtual subjugation of the country, which must, at no very distant date, lead to peace at any price.

The horrors of famine and pestilence inside of Metz are being matched by the butchery that has been taking place outside of it. Twenty villages burnt and one hundred and fifty peasants executed, are very suggestive items to any one who wishes to have a vivid ideal of the prosaic side of a great national struggle. Illicit warfare must seem a harsh enough phrase to designate the defense of home and country, and the fate of the wine-growers of the Moselle, whose patriotism has been visited upon them as a capital crime, may serve either to intensify the existing hatred of the invaders, and so beget a wild and desperate desire for revenge, or it may add to the panic terror which has stricken a large section of both army and people of France.

OBITUARY.

Gen. Robert E. Lee.

Intelligence was received last evening of the death at Lexington, Va., of Gen. ROBERT E. LEE, the most famous of the officers whose celebrity was gained in the service of the Southern Confederacy during the late terrible rebellion. A report was received some days ago that he had been smitten with paralysis, but this was denied, and though it was admitted that he was seriously ill, hopes of his speedy recovery seem to have been entertained by his friends. Within the last two or three days his symptoms had taken an unfavorable turn, and he expired at 9½ o'clock yesterday morning of congestion of the brain, at the age of sixty-three years, eight months and twenty-three days.

ROBERT EDMUND LEE was the son of Gen. HENRY LEE, the friend of WASHINGTON, and a representative of one of the wealthiest and most respected families of Virginia. Born in January, 1807, he grew up amid all the advantages which wealth and family position could give in a republican land, and received the best education afforded by the institutions of his native State. Having inherited a taste for military studies, and an ambition for military achievements, he entered the National Academy at West Point in 1825, and graduated in 1829, the second in scholarship in his class. He was at once commissioned Second Lieutenant of engineers, and in 1835 acted as assistant astronomer in drawing the boundary line between the States of Michigan and Ohio. In the following year he was promoted to the grade of First Lieutenant, and in 1838 received a Captain's commission. On the breaking out of the war with Mexico he was made Chief-Engineer of the army under the command of Gen. WOOL. After the battle of Cerro Gordo, in April, 1847, in which he distinguished himself by his gallant conduct, he was immediately promoted to the rank of Major. He displayed equal skill and bravery at Contreras, Cherubusco and Chapultepec, and in the battle at the last-mentioned place received a severe wound. His admirable conduct throughout this struggle was rewarded before its close with the commission of a Lieutenant-Colonel and the brevet title of Colonel. In 1852 he was appointed to the responsible position of Superintendent of the Military Academy at West Point, which he retained until 1855. On retiring from the charge of this institution he was made Lieutenant-Colonel of the Second Cavalry, and on the 16th of March, 1861, received the commission of Colonel of the First Cavalry.

Thus far the career of Col. LEE had been one of honor and the highest promise. In every service which had been intrusted to his hands he had proved efficient, prompt and faithful, and his merits had always been readily acknowledged and rewarded by promotion. He was regarded by his superior officers as one of the most brilliant and promising men in the army of the United States. His personal integrity was well known, and his loyalty and patriotism was not doubted. Indeed, it was in view of the menaces of treason and the dangers which threatened the Union that he had received his last promotion, but he seems to have been thoroughly imbued with that pernicious doctrine that his first and highest allegiance was due to the State of his birth. When Virginia joined the ill-fated movement of secession from the Union, he immediately threw up his commission in the Federal Army and offered his sword to the newly-formed Confederacy. He took this step, protesting his own attachment to the Union, but declaring that his sense of duty would never permit him to "raise his hand against his relatives, his children, and his home." In his farewell letter to Gen. SCOTT, he spoke of the struggle which this step had cost him, and his wife declared that he "wept tears of blood over this terrible war." There are probably few who doubt the sincerity of his protestation, but thousands have regretted, and his best friends will ever have to regret, the error of judgment, the false conception of the allegiance due to his Government and his country, which led one so rarely gifted to cast his lot with traitors, and devote his splendid talents to the execution of a wicked plot to tear asunder and ruin the Republic in whose service his life had hitherto been spent.

"He resigned his commission on the 25th of April, 1861, and immediately betook himself to Richmond, where he was received with open arms and put in command of all the forces of Virginia by Gov. LETCHER. On the 10th of May he received the commission of a Major-General in the army of the Confederate States, retaining the command in Virginia, and was soon after promoted to the rank of General in the regular army. He first took the field in the mountainous region of Western Virginia, where he met with many difficulties, and was defeated at Greenbrier by Gen. J. J. REYNOLDS on the 3d of October, 1861. He was subsequently sent to take command of the Department of the South Atlantic Coast, but after the disabling of Gen. JOSEPH E. JOHNSTON at the battle of Fair Oaks, in the Spring of 1862, he was recalled to Virginia, and placed at the head of the forces defending the capital, which he led through the remainder of the campaign of the Chickahominy. He engaged with the Army of the Potomac under his old companion-in-arms, Gen. MCCLELLAN, and drove it back to the Rappahannock. He afterward, in August, 1862, attacked the Army of Virginia, under Gen. POPE, and, after driving it back to Washington, crossed the Potomac into Maryland, where he issued a proclamation calling upon the inhabitants to enlist under his triumphant banners. Meantime MCCLELLAN gathered a new army from the broken remnants of his former forces, and met LEE at Hagerstown, and, after a battle of two days, compelled him to retreat. Reinforced by "Stonewall" JACKSON, on the 16th of September, he turned to renew the battle, but after two days of terrible fighting at Sharpsburg and Antietam, was driven from were dictated by that great soldier. Lee retired under his parole to Weldon, and soon after made a formal submission to the Federal Government. Subsequently, by an official clemency, which is probably without a parallel in the history of the world, he was formally pardoned for the active and effective part he had taken in the mad effort of the Southern States to break up the Union and destroy the Government. Not long after his surrender he was invited to become the President of Washington University, at Lexington, Va., and was installed in that position on the 3d of October, 1865. Since that time he has devoted himself to the interests of that institution, keeping so far as possible aloof from public notice, and by his unobtrusive modesty and purity of life, has won the respect even of those who most bitterly deplore and reprobate his course in the rebellion.

EXPENSES OF THE PENSION BUREAU.

The expenditures of the Pension Bureau for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1870, were $27,780,000, or $642,000 less than for the preceding fiscal year. The estimates for the past year were $31,000,000, thus showing that the expenditures have come $3,000,000 within the estimates, notwithstanding the fact that during the year some 25,000 pensioners were added to the rolls, carrying from $600 to $1,500 each as arrearages.

BENJAMIN H. BRISTOW has just been appointed Solicitor-General under the law organizing the Department of Justice, with the Attorney-General at its head. BRISTOW has served for some years past as United States Attorney for the State of Kentucky; he was also an officer in the late war. The President, several weeks ago, expressed his preference for that gentleman, but delayed making the appointment until the return of Attorney-General AKERMAN, with whom he had a conference on the subject. The salary of the office is $7,500. In case of a vacancy in the office of Attorney-General, or in his absence or disability, the Solicitor-General has the power to exercise all the duties of the office.

AMUSEMENTS.

Theatrical.

THE GERMAN DRAMA.

A very symmetrical and interesting performance of BRACHVOGEL'S drama of "Narcisse" was given at the Fourteenth-street Theatre last evening. Mr. HARRY, a most earnest and impressive actor, embodied Narcisse, and Mlle. VENETA represented Mme. de Pompadour. To-night "Kabale und Liebe" is to be performed by Mme. SEEBACH and the whole company.

Musical.

GOTTSCHALK CONCERTS.

The first concert of the Misses GOTTSCHALK was given at Association Hall, last evening. The ladies were assisted by Mr. J. B. POENANSKI, violinist, and by Mr. GUSTAVUS HALL, baritone. They were very cordially received, and their respective performances were heartily applauded. Miss CELESTINE GOTTSCHALK has an excellent touch and a facile execution. Miss CLARA GOTTSCHALK plays well, without rivaling her sister. Miss BLANCHE GOTTSCHALK is gifted with an unusually good soprano voice. The programme they interpreted consisted almost wholly of compositions of their lamented brother. These, it is needless to say, are ever welcome. During the evening Mr. HALL'S large vocal resources were successfully drawn upon, and Mr. POENANSKI'S clear violin-playing afforded great pleasure. The second concert of the series takes place to-morrow night at the same place, and a matinée is to be given there on Saturday.

Base-Ball—Athletic vs. Excelsior.

The noted Athletic and Excelsior amateur clubs, of Brooklyn, played their first match together this season, yesterday, and but for the unpropitious weather in the morning, which led so many to suppose that the game would not take place, the contest would have attracted a large gathering of spectators. The same cause led to the absence of several of the players of both nines, and hence "subs" had to take the places of the absentees, the Athletics only having eight men present. The game was closely contested up to the close of the sixth inning, at which time the totals stood at 7 to 1 in favor of the Athletics. In the fifth inning, however, the Excelsiors, after escaping a whitewashing owing to a muff at second base, ran up a score of 10 runs, and, as it was too near dark to play the full game out, the contest closed with the sixth inning, and, of course, in favor of the Excelsiors. Of the play on the occasion, LOCKITT'S fly-catches at centre field and FRANK'S first-base play, on the Excelsior side, merit notice, as also the good play of BENNETT at first base and PROCTOR at third. NOONAN and PETERS led at the bat. We give the score:

Cricket—The International Match.

Owing to the absence of some of the players selected to play on the English side in the grand match at Philadelphia, to-morrow, a change has been made in the English eleven, which will now consist of the following players: Mr. Rassler and Mr. Hargreaves, of Philadelphia; Messrs. Rogerson, Byron and Keller, of the New-York Club; Mr. Haines, of the St. George, and the following professionals: Morley and Carpenter, of St. George; McIntyre, of Germantown; Pearson, of Philadelphia, and Eastwood, of Boston. By a letter from Mr. CHAS. NEWHALL, we are informed that "play" will be called at 2 P. M. on Friday, rather late in the day to commence a match of the kind; but the game is to be resumed at 10 A. M. the next day. The rain of yesterday has softened the ground a little, and a fine wicket will be prepared. The betting is 100 to 75 on the American eleven. The contest excites the utmost interest in Philadelphia, and a large gathering of spectators is anticipated. The New-York delegation leave at 7 P. M. today.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—GEO. OTTO TREVELYAN, one of the junior Lords of the Admiralty, last evening made a speech to his constituents in the border burghs at Selkirk, Scotland. He complained of the Duke of CAMBRIDGE'S army management as slow and insufficient in times so critical. ....The Times, in its financial article, today, refers discouragingly to the Tehuantepec Canal route, but approves that of Nicaragua, and thinks in view of the Pacific Railroad and similar great American projects, the latter work will be a success....Communication with Aden and India via the Red Sea cables was again established this afternoon.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 12.—The steamer England, which has arrived at this port from New-York, reports: Oct. 1, passed an abandoned vessel laden with timber; her name is Black Swan.

DEATH OF GEN. LEE.

His Final Relapse and Closing Hours at Lexington, Va.—The News at Richmond—Demonstrations of Grief.

The following dispatches relating to the sudden relapse of Gen. LEE were received yesterday afternoon:

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 12.—The Dispatch has just received the following telegram from Staunton, Va.:

"A messenger arrived here last night from Lexington, bringing the information that Gen. LEE is much worse. His physicians report that his disease has assumed a more serious form, and his friends are alarmed at his condition."

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 12, via MILBORO', Va.—Symptoms of an unfavorable character have manifested themselves in the disease of Gen. LEE within the past two days. His condition is not very encouraging; indeed, it begins to excite the grave apprehensions of his friends and physicians. The members of his family living at a distance have been summoned to his bed.

Later in the day the following intelligence arrived:

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Private dispatches from Richmond give particulars of the death of Gen. LEE, at Lexington, at 9½ o'clock this morning. He began growing worse on Monday, and continued to sink until the last, dying calmly and gently, with expressions of assured faith in his religion. Business houses in Richmond were closed this afternoon, and great manifestations of grief were made.

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 12—10 A. M.—via MILBORO', Va.—Gen. ROBERT E. LEE breathed his last at 9½ o'clock this morning, of congestion of the brain, aged sixty-three years, eight months and twenty-three days.

RICHMOND, Oct. 12.—The Despatch has just received the following special telegram:

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 12.—Gen. LEE died this morning at 9½ o'clock. He began to grow worse on Monday, and continued to sink until he breathed his last. The places of business are closed, the bells are tolling, and the whole community thrown into the deepest grief.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 12.—The telegram received here about noon, announcing that unfavorable symptoms had manifested themselves in Gen. LEE'S disease, had partially prepared our people to anticipate the worst, but notwithstanding this, when later in the afternoon the second dispatch announcing his death was received, the effect was crushing. The news spread around, and in a short time a deep feeling of gloom pervaded the whole community. The city authorities have issued orders that the bells on public buildings be tolled during to-morrow. Gov. WALKER will officially communicate the sad event to the Legislature. There will be a general suspension of business. The City Council will meet to-morrow to take appropriate action.

PRISON CONGRESS.

Meeting in Cincinnati of the National Prison Congress—Papers on Prison Reformatories and Prison Discipline.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 12.—The National Prison Congress commenced its sessions here today, at 10 o'clock A. M., in Thorn's Hall. A permanent organization was accomplished by making Gov. R. B. HAYS, of Ohio, President. He was conducted to the chair by Gov. BAKER, of Indiana, and Ex-Gov. HAINES, of New-Jersey. Mr. HAYES made a brief address on assuming the chair, in which he spoke in strong terms of the objects of the meeting, and the great good that might be expected from its labors.

Dr. WINES, of the New-York Prison Association, gave a general account of the prisons of the United States. He said that there were forty State prisons, twenty-five houses of correction, and about two thousand county jails, besides a large number of station-houses and lock-ups, chiefly in the cities and large towns; that there were, on an average, 15,000 prisoners in the State prisons, from 5,000 to 6,000 in the houses of correction, from 40,000 to 50,000 in the common jails, and perhaps as many in the lock-ups; that crime had increased within the last decade, but disproportionately to the increased population.

Dr. PIERCE, from the New-York House of Refuge, read an elaborate and interesting paper on the Reformatories of the United States, in which he traced their rise and history, explained their present condition, and showed the vast work they were accomplishing for the conversion of the rising generation. A debate ensued, in which the comparative merits of the congregated and family systems of conducting reformatory schools were the subject of discussion, which was participated in by E. L. PIERCE, of the Massachusetts Board of State Prisons, R. W. MARCUS AMES, of the Massachusetts Girls' Industrial School, and others.

In the evening two papers were read which had been forwarded by foreign gentlemen—the first by F. BATNY, formerly Chancellor of Denmark, and now Inspector General of Prisons in that country, giving an exceedingly interesting account of State prison discipline there. Points of great value in the Danish method of prison treatment were developed, well worthy of attention in other countries.

The second paper was by Sir JOHN BOWRING, of England. His essay treated on the purposes of prison discipline. The view he took of a prison was that of a moral hospital, in which prisoners were patients; this thought was the key to his theory of prison treatment. He drew a vivid but by no means flattering picture of the unpaid country Justices of England and their dispensation of justice.

A very able discussion followed, in which the question was, Whether the highest pecuniary result in prison management was compatible with the highest moral result? Messrs. BROCKWAY and PILSBURY maintaining the affirmative, and Gov. BAKER, D. WIRES and Dr. WOLFF, the negative. Other members participated in the debate. The only paper read in the evening was by Mr. BROCKWAY, under the title of "The Idea of a True Prison System for a State."

Arrest of the Richmond Belligerents.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 12.—Messrs. BARBOUR and WALKER, parties to the recent challenge, were arrested, today, by the Chief of the Police under apprehension of another collision. They were bailed to answer to-morrow morning.

They were owned by BUTLER & SON, and insured for $5,000 in the National, of Boston; $2,000 in the International, of New-York; $2,000 in the Eagle Williams; $4,000 in the Hartford, of Hartford; $2,000 in the Norwich, and $2,000 in the Phœnix, of Hartford. Loss about $35,000.

SOCIAL SCIENCE.

Meeting of the American Association at Boston—Election of Officers—The Women Put in their Claims and Have them Allowed.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 12.—The annual meeting of the American Social Science Association was held today in Freeman-place Chapel, President SAMUEL ELIOT in the chair.

The Treasurer's report showed the disbursements for the year to be $6,816, and the receipts $6,883. The whole number of members of the Association, including 34 life members, is 694. A sinking fund has been subscribed for the completion and publication of an emigrant's hand-book, which now amounts to nearly $5,000. The report of the late Secretary, HENRY VILLARD, who has been compelled by ill health to resign, gives an elaborate account of the doings of the Society. In it mention is made of a hand-book for immigrants, to be issued by the Society, designed to prevent imprudent immigration, to furnish immigrants with such information as will enable them to cross the Atlantic and find new homes and occupations in the United States in the cheapest, safest and quickest manner.

The following list of officers was reported: President, SAMUEL ELIOT; Treasurer, J. T. Blanchford; Directors, James M. Barnard, Emory Washburn, F. B. Sanborn, C. C. Perkins, Geo. B. Emerson and Waldo Higginson. The Chairman said that no nomination was made for Secretary, in hopes the late incumbent would be able speedily to resume his duties. Mrs. DALL protested against the report of the Committee as having no women upon the list. Col. HIGGINSON asked for the reading of the names of the last Board, by which it appeared that Mrs. PARKMAN, Mrs. DALL and Miss MAY were members. Mr. PHILBRICK stated that the idea was not to discriminate against women, but leave the Board to fill its own vacancies. Col. HIGGINSON moved to add the names of Mrs. PARKMAN and Miss MAY to the Board of Directors. Mrs. DALL spoke several times, and stated that the nomination of the two ladies Associated with her last year was made a jest of instead of being serious, as declared by the President. She was willing to go out of the association, without resigning, were it necessary to its interests. The President replied that he did not intend to interfere in the election of officers, but it was his province, as Chairman of the meeting, to state the facts. Mr. WASHBURN advocated the leaving of the matter with the Board, and he hoped there would be one meeting where men and women could co-operate without introducing the subject that is exciting so much discussion. Rev. J. T. SARGENT would not belong to the Association one hour if it declared against woman's rights. Mr. PHILBRICK moved to lay Col. HIGGINSON'S motion upon the table. The motion was lost, and Mrs. PARKMAN and Miss MAY were added to the Board by an unanimous vote. The President then made an address, and the meeting dissolved.

WOODFORD AND HOFFMAN.

The Republican Candidate Challenges His Opponent to a Public Discussion—The Governor Declines the Contest.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Gen. WOODFORD has written a letter to the Governor asking him to meet him for public discussion. The following is the correspondence:

POTSDAM, St. Lawrence County, Oct. 6, 1870.

To His Excellency John T. Hoffman:

SIR: In 1866 you invited the Republican candidate for the Governorship to join you in a public discussion of the political questions at issue in that canvass. I have been informed that in 1868 you also invited the then Republican candidate to a like discussion, and a fortnight having passed since your renomination, and not having heard from you, I invite you to a joint discussion of the issues of the pending canvass, as presented on the platforms of the Democratic and Republican Parties of this State, upon which we have been respectively nominated—such joint discussion to be held at the public meetings between Oct. 18, inst., and Nov. 8, prox., and one-half of the number of such meetings shall be at places to be named by your part, and the remaining half at places to be named on mine. This letter will be handed you by Hon. Mr. PARKER, of Potsdam, who is authorized to receive your answer, and to make any arrangements as to details in my behalf.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
(Signed,) STEWART L. WOODFORD.

To Hon. Stewart L. Woodford, Potsdam, St. Lawrence County:

SIR: I am directed by the Governor to acknowledge the receipt, this day, of your letter, dated Potsdam, Oct. 6, inviting him to a joint discussion with you of the issues of the pending canvass, and to inform you also that his attention has been called to a speech in which you express a wish to discuss with him topics which would involve personalities, namely, charges made by you that he was elected by fraud, and charges made by others, not by him, affecting your own personal and official integrity. He directs me to say in reply, that, having in 1866 and 1868, when he was merely a candidate for office, made a personal canvass of the State, the opposing candidates never meeting him, and addressed the people on many occasions, it does not seem unnecessary, to do it again; and that, in his judgment, discussions of a personal nature between opposing candidates for high office should always be avoided. He directs me further to say that, having for two years been speaking almost daily for his official acts and measures to the people, they have before them material upon which to form their judgment of his administration, and do not, he is confident, expect or desire him to leave the Executive chair and the duties pertaining to it, for the purpose of discussing either political or personal questions with you. Should he speak at all during the canvass, he will do so at the request of his fellow-citizens, at such time and place as may be most convenient to them and him.

Very respectfully,
(Signed,) JOHN D. VAN BUREN,
Private Secretary.

IMPERIAL FRANCE.

Private Correspondence of Napoleon III.—M. Jecker to M. Conti—An Indictment of Polisy.

From the Journal Officiel of Sept. 26, the latest Paris issue received by balloon post in Havre, we extract the following:

"The first installment of documents found among the correspondence and papers of the Imperial family was published today. The Government has believed it to be its duty to publish these documents without commentary, and with that impartiality which appertains to history. The importance of four of these papers prompts us to publish them at least in part. The first of them only proves too plainly the facts so often affirmed by the men who have at present the honor to preside over the Government of the country. It is a letter addressed by M. JECKER to M. CONTI, Chef du Cabinet of NAPOLEON III.

PARIS, Dec. 6, 1869.

SIR: Do you not think it strange that I prefer addressing myself to you, having to draw your attention to an affair which particularly concerns the Emperor? You will have heard enough about my affair of the Treasury bonds to know something about it. Very well; I think the Government are treating it with too much indifference, and if they do not pay attention unpleasantness to the Emperor will arise from it. You are no doubt ignorant of the fact that my partner in this affair was M. le Duc DE MORNY, who had undertaken, in consideration of thirty per cent. of the profits in the affair, to cause it to be acknowledged and paid by the Mexican Government, as had been the case from the beginning. Upon this subject there exists a voluminous correspondence with his agent, M. DE MANROX. In January of last these gentlemen sent to me to treat of this affair. This arrangement was come to when my house was already in liquidation, so that everything regarding it belongs exclusively to it. As soon as this arrangement was concluded, I was thoroughly supported by the French Government and its Legation at Mexico. The latter had even assured my creditors, in the name of France, that the bonds would be fully paid, and had addressed very strongly-worded notes to the Mexican Government upon the subject of the fulfillment of my contract with them, and to the extent that the ultimatum of 1867 required the fulfillment pur et simple of the decrees. Since that period I have been constantly exposed to the hatred of the party in power, who threw me into prison and finally banished me, after confiscating my property. The affair remained in this state until the occupation of Mexico by the French. Under the Emperor MAXIMILIAN, and at the instance of the French Government, the settlement of my affair was again taken into consideration. In August, 1866, I succeeded, aided by French agents, in coming to an arrangement with the Mexican Government. At that period it happened that M. le Duc DE MORNY died, so that the powerful protection that the French Government had accorded to me ceased completely."

A letter by NAPOLEON first hints at the secret treaty. Among the letters and projects dictated by NAPOLEON to his Chef du Cabinet, the following letter figures. It throws a light on the designs and the proceedings of the Imperial policy (without date):

"If France is to boldly adopt the doctrines of nationalities, it is necessary to maintain henceforth that there is no Belgian nationality with the French nationality, and to establish this essential point with the French nation. On the other hand, the Cabinet of Berlin, being disposed to enter into such arrangements as it may suit France to entertain with it, there will be occasion to negotiate a secret treaty which will bind both parties. Without insisting on this treaty being a perfectly sure guarantee, it would have the double advantage of compromising Prussia, as being for her a proof of the sincerity of the policy and intentions of the Emperor. It is recommended not to hide from ourselves, so long as one knows the character of the King of Prussia and of his Prime Minister, the fact that the late diplomatic incidents, as well as the actual tendencies of public opinion in France, must have opened their eyes to the circumstance that we have not ceased to claim the frontier of the Rhine. To make sure of meeting with the confidence which is necessary for the maintenance of intimate entente we must employ ourselves in dissipating those apprehensions which have always been fostered by the expectation of this eventuality, and the apprehensions which have also been awakened by our late communications. These results cannot be attained by words; there must be an act (and one which would consist in determining the ultimate fate of Belgium) in concert with Prussia; by proving at Berlin that the Emperor is really looking elsewhere than on the Rhine for that extension necessary to France. After the events which have recently transpired in Germany, this will gain for us at least a relative certainty that the Prussian Government will not place any obstacle in the way of our aggrandisement in the north."

PRUSSIA BEFORE PARIS.

Versailles (Sept. 20) Correspondence London Times.

It is almost a dream. Those glorious realities, "like unto visions," which have blessed the old age of King WILLIAM of Prussia are not for ordinary mortals. To find oneself in Versailles to-night; to have seen Paris the Beautiful at one's feet; to have witnessed the triumphing, if not triumphal, entry of the Crown Prince into the City of the Kings today! I can do but little in the way of recording impressions which are for me, unfortunately, the registering of the facts around me—the Absolus omits subjectis. But here at 7½ P. M., are the Crown Prince and his staff quartered in a good city, and angry Paris close at hand agitated by a hundred passions, almost, I must think, if I am to judge from our own boldness and security, impotent in her rage and fierce vindictiveness. It wants but an hour and some minutes to the time of closing the post, which now travels only by day to Nancy, where the railroad communication begins with Germany; and so I must hurry on, indeed, and after all leave much unsaid. Head-quarters halted at Palaiseau last night. There was quiet all along the front, though now and then there was the boom of a heavy gun from the forts, vexing the outposts, and sending a spasm, perhaps through the breasts, of the reporters, at the clamor of voices. This morning the Crown Prince and his staff left Palaiseau at 10 o'clock—a very wise step, for there was really no adequate force to protect us from a coup de main if a few thousand men were bent on trying an attack. It was a very interesting day—a reconnoissance, in fact, by the Crown Prince of the ground gained yesterday and of his position south and south-west of Paris. In the course of the ride the Prince had to pass over the ground of the fight yesterday, and to visit the strong earthwork near Fontenay-aux-Roses, so strangely abandoned by the French at the close of the fight. Parisians will hardly know those Londoners the roads which were taken, and which led as it were from Dartford to Forestehill or Sydenham, so that at last there lay the city in all its glory beneath us—not like London wreathed in smoke clouds and shrouded by dark, drifted screens of vapor, but clear and distinct as in a photograph, with its long lines of palaces and the woodiest suburbs. The dome of the Invalides, the towers of Notre Dame, and steeples innumerable, stark and bright in the blaze of the September sun. The route from Palaiseau lay through a charming valley, along which are many chateaus and country mansions, all deserted, apparently, and abandoned to the mercy of the strangers. We passed by the noble farm of Les Granges, with its swing tower, leaving Massy on our right, and skirting the railway for a little till we reached Igny, where a detachment of infantry received the Prince with loud cheers. The village or town was quite deserted. The notices on the walls, so fierce and urgent, seemed to me a mockery in the death-like silence of the streets. As I believe, a little way beyond, there was a small convoy of wounded in the main street, and the flags were hanging out of the windows to mark the hospitals, and many Bavarians swarmed in and out of the houses. The disposition to make a fight of it was shown by the numerous cuttings on the roads and the felled timber all the way. While the "Fighting Fifth" were in bivouac the night before last on the plateau above Bièvre they were attacked as early as 1½ A. M. by a portion of the outlying garrison of Paris. The greater part of the corps d'armée had moved off, and the attack was developed impetuously as morning broke, so that the rear brigade of the corps division which had to meet the full blunt of it suffered severely, and lost ground, but before midday the whole aspect of affairs was changed. The Sixth Division of HARTMANN'S Bavarians, consisting of two brigades, came up to the assistance of KIRCHBACH'S Corps, which had also got itself together, and the result was a very handsome repulse, not only recovering the lost ground, but ending in the occupation of a most considerable earthwork, twice larger than the Grand Redan on the rides over Fontenay-aux-Roses and Chatnay, nearly on Fort Issy. Montrouge, and the capture of nine guns mounted in position, which were left by the French as soon as they saw the column of assault forming. The French regiments engaged, judging from the dead I saw on the field, consisted of the Sixth, Eleventh, Twenty-seventh, Fifty-sixth, Fifty-ninth and Seventy-first Regiments, and the Prussian Forty-seventh seemed to have suffered a good deal also. The abandonment of the earthwork evinced great "demoralization," which is the pet euphemism for a quality which cannot be attributed to most soldiers. This was just above Bièvre, but the combat extended for several miles along the plateau to the south of Meudon, and it is evident the French meant to put in on the line of the Crown Prince's army as a diversion to prevent its communications, so as to break his army in two. Orders were given to fire over the town beyond the Abbaye-aux-Bois to break the ground so as not to draw the fire of the forts. At one time I thought the counter a crimson of Notre Dame and the hotels over Charenton; but it was not till we came to Petit Bicêtre that the tokens of the affair of yesterday became serious. Here a sign-post marks eight kilometres to Versailles on one side, west, and four kilometres to Chatenay on the other; four kilometres to Chatillon, and three kilometres to Bièvre. In the woods around there were dead Frenchmen in all directions. At Chatenay, the village of VOLTAIRE, the Crown Prince and staff halted for a little, and then, taking a by-road, rode up to the captured work, which the Bavarians were busily engaged in making as clear as possible toward the French side. Here all dismounted, and the Crown Prince, going forward on foot with Gen. VON BLUMENTHAL, made a general examination of the front. Paris was there at his feet in one sense, but the firing from the pickets below showed it was not so in the sense of surrender.

MODERN WARFARE.

How a Woman Perished at Bazeilles.

Correspondence of the Frankfurter Zeitung.

"I had but just quitted one scene of cruelty, when a new horror encountered me. From a house close behind me came the reports in quick succession of two shots. I turned, and saw a Frankstreuger, in the exercise of his duty, fall convulsively to the ground. The wounded man he is carrying rolls with him in the dust. From that house proceeded the shots: five, six Bavarians force a way in, the door breaks under the blows of their butt-ends. But the soldiers stand as if stunned. On the threshold appears, armed with double-barreled gun, a tall woman; she may be fifty years old, dishevelled gray hairs fall around a fine—yes, a noble face. As she regards the soldiers her features are distorted, she laughs wildly, the laugh of this woman is a fearful thing. Vous êtes une bête, calls out a doctor hurrying by. Her laugh is silenced, a torrent of tears gushes down her face, she exclaims softly, but in tones of heart-rending pain—Non, je suis épouse, je suis mère! Vous avez assassiné mon mari; vous avez massacré mes fils. Tuez moi aussi! Je veux en remercirai. Si vous ne me tuez pas, c'est moi qui vous tuerai. With the last words the old wrath returns. She again raises the gun. The soldiers have not understood her. They seek to avenge their comrade and to protect themselves. The doctor stands shuddering. The mystery before we can say a word the unhappy woman falls, struck by two bullets in the breast. 'Let her die in quiet,' calls out the doctor to the men, who seem not yet to have satisfied their revenge. They let go her hand and her two sons. That makes an impression on the soldiers; silently they turn away. I turn back with the doctor. We stoop down to the poor woman. Her wounds are fatal. The woman regards us wildly. I take her hand, and involuntarily my lips utter pauvre femme. The words seemed to have pleased her, she feels they come from the heart. Her eyes grow dim, and as she clasped my hand firmly her bosom heaves a last sigh."

ALPINE PERILS.

The Accident on Mont Blanc.

The London Times prints copies of two letters on the subject of that melancholy calamity. Rev. J. C. MCCLURE, writing from Geneva, on the 20th of September, to ROBERT BINNS, gives the following brief account:

"I am extremely sorry to inform you that I have now only too much reason to believe that Rev. GEORGE MCCORMINDALE, of Gourock, perished, with two other travelers, on a night visit in the late deplorable accident on Mont Blanc. He was observed as a devout worshiper at Chamouni on Sunday, Sept. 4, and left for Mont Blanc (after writing to you on the 3d) on Monday, the 5th. The whole party, having been seen on the summit of the mountain on Tuesday, the 6th, are believed to have lost their way, and in the dreadful storm that arose, and which was felt even at this distance, to have been either hurled over a precipice or frozen to death. After a painful suspense of twelve days, only five of the bodies have been found, one being that of the gentleman beloved by me and others on the most intelligible circumstantial evidence, to be that of Mr. MCCORKINDALE. You know that he wrote to you of his intention to ascend the mountain, and the description given by the chef de guides in Chamouni, together with the small white necktie found in the valley and with him in the Hotel de Mont Blanc, leads too sadly to the belief that our fears are verified to the utmost degree. The body, with those of his companions already found, was respectfully buried this morning, at 7 o'clock, in the churchyard of Chamouni. I intended to have gone there to identify the remains, and pay the last respects to them, had I not got information of his burial at the same time as of the body being found. The sorrow in Chamouni, and also in Geneva, is great, and doubtless the relatives of the departed, and the congregation mourning with them the loss of one whose worth I and many knew, will appreciate this Christian sympathy. God's will be done!

"P. S.—The universal opinion is that the season was too far advanced by some weeks for the ascent. Snow fell the day the party were up, and here, forty-five miles off, the gale was terrific and the cold for some hours intense."

Rev. H. D. BURROWS writes, under date Geneva, Sept. 20:

"In reply to yours of the 16th inst., I must state with the deepest sorrow that no doubt exists here about the loss of your poor friend Mr. MCCORMINDALE. Two of the bodies of the travelers and three of the bodies of the porters were recovered on Monday, and one body was identified as that of the gentleman whom they knew at the Hotel de Mont Blanc, where he stayed, as Mr. CORMINDALS. I should mention, however, that in the books he wrote 'MCCORKINDALE.' Your extracts from the letters, his mention of the Imperial Hotel, and the pig-hotel, opposite where he stayed, entirely remove from our minds the last hope of any mis-identity. The authorities at Chamouni had the bodies buried yesterday morning about 7, much to my surprise, without apprising me, or the kind and active Mr. MCKEEN, who, with several American gentlemen, was waiting anxiously to learn by telegraph when the bodies had been brought into Chamouni, in order to go down. We are informed, however, that a service was held in the Mont Blanc Hotel, by whom and of what nature I can tell nothing. The corpses were deposited in the pig-hotel, pending the erection of a little English chapel. I sincerely hope that he has left no poor widow or family. May God help them and give them strength to bear the stroke of his loss; and may He, in whose hands are all our times, lighten it to all his friends."

THE CAPTURE OF ROME.

A Catholic on the Pope's Attitude in Relation to the Surrender of the Eternal City.

Writing to the London Times on Oct. 1, the Earl of DENBIGH, expressing a Catholic view of the Roman occupation, declares that the following is an accurate translation, made from the original Italian, in his possession, of the Pope's letter to Gen KANZLER:

GENERAL! At this moment when a great sacrilege and a most enormous injustice are being consummated, and the troops of the Catholic King, without provocation, nay, without even the least appearance of any motive, surround and besiege the capital of the Catholic world, I feel, in the first place, the necessity of thanking you, General, and our entire army, for your generous conduct up to the present time, for the affection which you have shown to the Holy See, and for your willingness to consecrate yourselves entirely to the defense of the Metropolis. These words be solemn documents to certify to the discipline, the loyalty and the valor of the army in the service of this Holy See.

As far as regards the duration of the defense, I feel it my duty to command that this shall only consist in such a protest as shall testify to the violence done to us, and nothing more. In other words, that negotiations for surrender shall be opened so soon as

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The attendance at the Exchange, yesterday, (Oct. 12,) was again large, although the amount of business transacted was much less than the day before. The lease of the Glenham Hotel property, on the east side of Fifth-avenue, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets, was finally disposed of. The ground rent on the premises is $10,000 per annum, and the lease has seventeen years yet to run. The auctioneers stated that the rent and taxes now due, amounting to about $10,000, would be deducted from the purchase money, and that the annual rent on the property would be seven per cent. on the value of the land, and the old improvements. After some considerable discussion as to the power to pass a clear title, the lease was put up, and sold to SIDNEY E. CLAPP, of Boston, for $34,100. The sale was made by order of the Supreme Court, under the direction of GRATZ NATHAN, Esq., referee.

The only other transactions effected were made by WILLIAM KENNELLY, who sold the following improved City property: A three-story high-stoop Nova Scotia stone-front house, to be altered and Thirty-second-street, between Fifth and Madison avenues, $14,600; also, a three-story brick house and lease of lot, on the east side, No. 163 Third-avenue, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, $8,900. The last-named lot is subject to a ground-rent of $235 per year. The premises, it was stated, are now rented for $1,600 per annum.

Several postponements of sales were announced, as follows: By A. J. BLEECKER, SON & Co., of the Fifth-avenue property, corner of Thirteenth street, to Oct. 26; by ROBERTS & McGUIRE, of a lot on the north side of Thirty-ninth-street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues, to Oct. 19; by D. M. SEAMAN, of eight lots on Ninety-second and Ninety-Third streets, between Fourth and Fifth avenues, to Oct. 18; and by the same auctioneer, a valuable house and lot on Fifth-avenue, between Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth streets, to Nov. 9. Today, at the Exchange, does not give promise of much business.

The sale of suburban property at New-Dorp, S. I., under the direction of JOHNSON & MILLER, did not take place yesterday, owing to the severe storm. The sale will be made today, and all previous arrangements, together with tickets issued for the free excursion, will hold good for this date. For further particulars in regard to the property, reference is made to our advertising columns. Excursions will also be made today to the Linden Park grounds, where sales of desirable lots continue to attract public attention.

For Saturday of this week two important sales of suburban property are announced, of which attention is called. One of these is the sale to lots by JOHNSON & MILLER, belonging to the Pauld ing estate, and located at Dobb's Ferry, on the Hudson River. The value of property in this vicinity is too well known, by all persons conversant with real estate matters, to need an extended notice in this column. Eighteen building lots and twenty-five acres of choice land will be offered on Saturday, and sold without reserve to the highest bidder. All the property is handsomely located and surrounded by first-class improvements. The sale will take place on the ground at 12½ P. M., and for the convenience of purchasers special cars will be attached to the 11 o'clock express train from the depot of the Hudson River Railway, at Thirtieth-street. Free tickets can be procured from the auctioneers, No. 25 Nassau-street.

The other sale referred to, which is also to take place on Saturday, is that under the direction of A. J. BLEECKER, SON & Co., of property at Pelham, in Westchester County. The sale will be held on the ground at 11 P. M. The property offered adjoins the Pelham Priory, and is accessible from the City. It comprises one large Gothic house, carriage-house, garden, and about five acres of land, and three building sites, of from one to five acres; also, small cottages, on two acres each, a frame dwelling, and about two acres in the village, with stable, fencing, in New-Rochelle. Additional minutes' walk from railroad depot. Additional particulars can be obtained from the auctioneers, No. 7 Cedar-street. Both the above sales are attractive ones, and should be well attended.

A FIRST-CLASS INVESTMENT.

Cherry Valley, Sharon and Albany Railroad

FIRST MORTGAGE

Seven Per Cent. Convertible Bonds.

INTEREST PAYABLE JUNE 15 AND DEC. 15,

AT THE METROPOLITAN NATIONAL BANK, IN THE CITY OF NEW-YORK.

THE CHERRY VALLEY, SHARON AND ALBANY RAILROAD connects Albany, by way of Cobleskill, with the largely frequented watering places, Sharon Springs and Cherry Valley. It runs through a very rich agricultural country, quickly settled, and many thriving villages. The length of the road is twenty-two miles, from Cobleskill to Cherry Valley. It is now actually leased to the ALBANY AND SUSQUEHANNA RAILROAD, which road is again perpetually leased to the DELAWARE AND HUDSON CANAL COMPANY. The lease made to the latter Company provides that they shall run and keep in first-class order the Cherry Valley, Sharon and Albany Railroad, the latter to receive fifty per cent. of the gross earnings.

THE ROAD IS NOW EQUIPPED, AND OUGHLY WELL RAN, AND EQUIPPED, AND HAS RUN REGULARLY SINCE THE 16TH OF JUNE LAST. ITS EARNINGS HAVE BEEN

June.....$1,[illegible] 22
July.....4,133 22

OF WHICH FIFTY PER CENT. IS PAID TO THIS ROAD, AND IT IS THUS DEMONSTRATED THAT IN THE FIRST FEW MONTHS THE EARNINGS EXCEED BY THIRTY PER CENT. THE REQUIREMENTS FOR INTEREST ON THE FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS. There is no doubt that the business in future will increase vastly, and it is not extravagant to estimate the earnings of the next year at double those of this year, thus making the 2d day of October next, when the conversion privilege of conversion is valuable one, as the stock will no doubt soon earn dividends of ten per cent. per annum.

THE CAPITAL STOCK IS $300,000, WHICH HAS BEEN ALL SUBSCRIBED AND PAID UP IN CASH. The whole issue of Mortgage Bonds is $300,000, which is the only lien on the entire property. The trustees of the mortgage are J. Pierrepont Morgan, of Dabney, Morgan & Co., and T. F. Oicott, Vice-President of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank, of Albany.

The bonds bear seven per cent. interest, and are convertible into stock at the option of the holder.

Fifty thousand dollars of the bonds have been sold, and we offer the remaining $250,000 AT 92½ AND ACCRUED INTEREST. AND DO NOT HESITATE TO RECOMMEND THEM AS AN UNDOUBTED A 1 BOND, WHICH IS FULLY EQUAL AS A PERFECTLY SAFE INVESTMENT TO ANY FIRST MORTGAGE BOND QUOTED AT THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

Colored Mass-Meeting at Cooper Institute.

The Hall Crowded with the Friends of Freedom.

Speeches by Rev. Mr. Butler, Gen. Sharpe, Rev. N. H. Turpin, Mr. White and Others.

A very largely-attended mass-meeting of colored people was held at Cooper Institute last evening. The hall was packed to overflowing with a very orderly assemblage, among whom were a number of colored women and a considerable number of white men. A band of music was in attendance, and the meeting was very enthusiastic. JOHN F. ZULLE presided, assisted by twenty-two Vice-Presidents and ten Secretaries. Among the former were Rev. C. B. Ray, Rev. William Spelman, Rev. H. H. Garnet, Rev. John Robertson and Senator Ruby. Marshal SHARPE occupied a seat on the platform, together with JOHN A. KENNEDY, Esq., and a few other white gentlemen. After prayer the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, It was under a Republican Administration, and with the approval of the Republican Party, that slavery was abolished forever in the United States; and

Whereas, By the action of the Republican Legislatures, the right to vote has been secured to all male citizens of the United States, without respect to race, complexion or previous condition of servitude; therefore

Resolved, That we recognise the Republican Party as the true party of liberty and progress, and pledge ourselves, as between it and the Democratic Party, to give it our undivided fealty and support.

Resolved, That in view of the reduction off the national debt, of the removal of national taxes, and of the confidence shown by capitalists in the soundness of our national securities, we regard the administration of President GRANT as eminently honest and practical.

Resolved, That the completeness and success of Republican measures, State and national, is a clear proof of the statesmanship and forethought of Republican leaders, and will secure for them on the page of history a reward awarded only to men of masterly talents and of sincere devotedness to the public interest and the public weal.

Resolved, That we indorse and will vote for the Republican State ticket, headed by STEWART L. WOODFORD for Governor, and SIGISMUND KAUFMAN for Lieutenant-Governor, and believe that the candidates chosen are no only capable in themselves, but because we believe they will faithfully support two vital measures in the Republican policy, namely, financial integrity and the purity of the franchise.

Mr. ADAMS sung a political song, after which Rev. Mr. BUTLER (colored) was introduced, and was received with enthusiastic applause. He referred to the last time he attended a meeting in Cooper Institute, when the colored people celebrated the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment, and thanked God that he had so large an attendance on this occasion to ratify the nominations of the Republican Party as free men and as voters. He regretted that the colored race was as ignorant as they are, and was sorry to find that some colored men were so blind to their interests as to vote for the Democratic candidates. He held that no colored man had a right to vote away the liberties of his race and against the interests of his people. The sufferings of two hundred and fifty years forbade it. If he could strip the audience before him he could show the scars and welts of slavery upon the backs of many of the men and women. He appealed to his audience to know if they should forget Milliken's Bend, Fort Wagner, and other battle fields, where colored soldiers suffered, and was answered by an emphatic negative. Then he said, "Mark every black man who votes with the Democratic Party. That was the party which sustained slavery within, assisted in enforcing the Fugitive Slave law; which systematically opposed everything for the benefit of the black man, and hunted the colored people for three days in July, burned their orphan asylum, and hung some of our fathers and brothers on lamp-posts. He said that he never could forget that. He would be trusted that none of his hearers ever would. There was a time when politicians were very pleasant, and that was about election time. He should not be surprised if some Democratic politician should say, in order to get the colored man's vote, that some of his ancestors were colored people. He did not know how it was up here, but there was a great deal of that done down South, and there the relationship was nearer than a great grandfather. The Democrats were beginning to admire the colored man very much now, and even some of the women were curling their hair in imitation of the colored women. He said that wool was getting up now. A few years ago, cotton was king, but now wool was looking up. He concluded by appealing to his friends not, under any circumstances, to vote the Democratic ticket.

Gen. SHARPE, United States Marshal, was then introduced. He said that he considered it a proud privilege to be present with them to-night, and welcome to the rights of citizenship the members of a race who have so long been deprived of their rights. As the representative of the executive authority of the United States, he welcomed his audience on this auspicious occasion. After alluding to the heroism of the colored troops during the war, he referred to the duty of his hearers in this canvass, and urged them, for the sake of their brethren at the South and for themselves, to act rightly on this occasion, and adhere inflexibly to the principles of the Republican Party.

Rev. N. H. TURPIN was the next speaker. In the course of his remarks he said that though slavery was dead, the tail of prejudice still lived. There were excellent mechanics among the colored men, but owing to the prejudice of the whites, they could not get employment as such. But thanks to the Republican Party, the colored man was entitled to vote, and that was a great thing. He did not ask social equality, but he did ask that the colored man should enjoy political and religious equality. If the colored men were good enough to fight old JEFF. DAVIS, they were good enough to vote, as the equal of the white man. He referred to the first martyr for freedom—old JOHN BROWN—which elicited cheers for JOHN BROWN. He claimed relationship with every one in the house, and proved it by declaring that Noah had three sons, and the whole human family sprang from these three. In conclusion, he urged his hearers never to forget the Republican Party, which raised them to political equality, and expect to see the day when a colored man would be looked upon as an equal of the white man. He believed, if the Democratic Party could get the ascendency in Congress, they would throw every negro back into slavery again. Any colored man who would vote for such a party as that deserved to be branded.

Mr. WHITE, another colored citizen, was next introduced, and, after a few preliminary remarks, sang "John Brown," the entire audience joining in the chorus.

Gen. HIGHT, of Kentucky, was the next speaker, and referred briefly to his experience in that State. In conclusion, he urged his hearers to stand by the principles of the Republican Party, which had been instrumental in giving them their freedom and political rights.

The meeting then adjourned, with cheers for the Republican ticket.

THE REGISTRY.

Appointment of Inspectors in Accordance with the New National Law—Points in the Law of the Last Legislature.

Tuesday next, the 18th inst., will be the first day for the registration of persons qualified to vote at the coming election. In accordance with the law passed at the last session of Congress, Judge WOODRUFF, of the United States District Court, has appointed two inspectors, one from each party, to supervise the registry and attend the polls on election day, to see that there is a fair election and an honest count. The list of names were transmitted to United States Marshal SHARPE yesterday, and the men will be on hand at the various election districts to begin the work assigned to them on Tuesday next. It is said that Mayor HALL has agreed to appoint one Republican inspector of election for each district, in accordance with the amended Election law passed at the last Legislature, though the "Ring" claim that under the law as it was tinkered by them after its passage, he is under no obligation to give the Republicans any show whatever, but could, if he chose, select all three of the inspectors from Tammany Hall. The inspectors of election, as well as all other citizens, should make themselves thoroughly acquainted with the Election law passed by the last Legislature, as it contains several provisions of great importance to such as choose to avail themselves of them, to prevent fraud and secure an honest election. These provisions were inserted by Republican Senators, who were allowed by the Tammany Ring to make the law much more stringent than it had been, in return for their votes for the new Tammany charter. Among these provisions are the following, which should be carefully noted by Republicans who should see to it that they are enforced:

SEC. 10. At every general election for Ward, District, City, County, State, or judicial offices, each political party shall have the right of a challenger at each place of voting, who shall be assigned such position as will enable him to see each elector as he offers his vote, and who shall be protected in the discharge of his duty by the Police.

Section nine provides that the last meetings of the registers for enrolling voters shall be on the Monday and Tuesday preceding the week on which the election is to be held, thus giving a full week's time to citizens to examine the registry. It also provides that on the Thursday preceding the election, the Registers shall hold a final meeting, which shall be kept open from 9 o'clock in the morning till 9 in the evening, and at which any citizen shall have the right to examine the registry and to require the registers to write the words "to be challenged" opposite the name of any person on the registry whom such citizen shall declare not to be in his opinion a qualified voter. If such person so marked shall offer his vote on election day, it is then made the duty of the inspectors to challenge him, and if he insists upon voting, to make him swear in his vote. Any inspector violating this provision is declared guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction, shall be punished by imprisonment in the State Prison for a period of not less than one nor more than five years, and shall forever thereafter be disqualified from holding any office in the State. Section nine also requires the Registers to enter, opposite the name of every person registered, the street and number of the house occupied by him; "and if the person so registered shall reside in a block or tenement-house, the name of the same, if designated by name, and the number of the room or rooms occupied by the person or persons so registered, if the same are numbered."

Sections 25 and 26 make it a felony for any person to register, or cause himself to be registered, in any district in which he is not a qualified voter, or to vote, or offer to vote, in any district where he is not legally entitled to vote, or to vote more than once at any election, or to personate any other person, real or fictitious, and offer to vote in the name of such person.

Section 13 provides that "each candidate for any office to be filled at the election may, by a certificate in writing, signed by him, designate one person for each election district in which he is a candidate, to be present at the canvass of the ballots containing the names of the persons so designated for that office."

MISCELLANEOUS LOCAL POLITICS

Twentieth Assembly District German Soldiers' and Sailors' Club.

The Twentieth Assembly District Soldiers' and Sailors', and German Club, numbering over 500 members—all Germans—held their regular weekly meeting last night at Grimm's Garden, Third-avenue near Forty-ninth-street. The hall was crowded. Major GLAUBERNSTLE occupied the chair. The meeting was opened by a spirited address by the Chairman. Resolutions were adopted denouncing Tammany corruption, and advising all Germans to vote for the Republican ticket.

Mr. RICHARDS, in proposing the resolutions, spoke at length, referring to the crushing despotism by which Tammany Hall rules this City. He characterized it as worse than that under which the French people were crushed by LOUIS NAPOLEON, for, said the speaker, the French had at least the pleasure of being ruled by men of some character and brains; but we are under the heel of an oligarchy of ignorance, composed of the very scum of society. He referred to the Republican victories in the recent State elections, and said they were a glorious augury of the result in New-York, if Republicans only discharged their duty.

Mr. M. ELLINGER, of the Twenty-second Ward, next addressed the meeting and dwelt at length on the importance of the coming contest. He analyzed the ticket presented by the Republican Party for the suffrages of the people, and said every man whose name appeared there was in every way worthy and deserving of public confidence. He appealed to his hearers to join hands in one great and united effort to overthrow the corrupt clique that now rule this City, and render it a byword and a reproach all over the country.

Other speakers in English and German followed, and all were listened to with great attention and warmly applauded.

A fine band of music was in attendance, and at intervals played national and patriotic airs. The meeting was in every respect a great success, and gave ample evidence that the German Republicans of the Twentieth District will render a good account of themselves on the 8th of November.

First Assembly District Woodford and Kaufman Campaign Club.

The usual weekly meeting of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Woodford and Kaufman Club of the First Assembly District was held last evening at the Union Republican Head-quarters, No. 122 West Broadway, Major WM. H. BAKER presiding. Some routine business having been transacted, and the names of many new members enrolled, a discussion took place in reference to the conduct of Mr. JOHN W. HEAPS, Secretary, who was accused of Tammany proclivities. A motion was made to remove him from the Club, but his loyalty being established, it was withdrawn. It was resolved that a grand ratification meeting of the soldiers and sailors of the First Assembly District be held next Wednesday evening. Messrs. JOHN GLYN, MICHAEL GRAY and Col. M. W. BURNS were appointed to act as Secretaries on that occasion. The President having made a few remarks, the meeting adjourned at an early hour.

Westchester County Republican Convention.

The Republicans of Westchester County held their County Convention at White Plains yesterday. Every town in the county was fully represented, ninety-one delegates being present, and the utmost harmony prevailed. SILAS D. GIFFORD, of Morrisania, was elected Chairman, and Messrs. W. H. H. BARKER, WM. J. WOOD, G. TEN EYCK SHELDON and D. B. FRISBIE, Secretaries. The following nominations for county officers were made, viz.:

For Sheriff, WALTER H. HAIGHT, of Newcastle; Register, Dr. CHARLES J. NORDQUIST, of East Chester; Surrogate, JOHN S. BATES, of Bedford; County Clerk, ERNEST HALL, of Morrisania; Superintendent of the Poor, HENRY W. HART, of Yorktown; Justice of the Sessions, MYRON B. SILKMAN, of Bedford; Coroners, A. R. PIKE, of Cortlandt, and LEWIS B. FELTON, of Bedford.

The following gentlemen were appointed members of the County Committee, viz.: Silas D. Gifford, Chairman; Wm. H. Herring, Henry B. Archer, E. P. Phelps, D. O. Bradley, Samuel Shafter, J. C. Paulding.

At a caucus of the Republicans of the Seventh Assembly District, Messrs. Alfred E. Smith, Benjamin Badeau, George Frisbie, James H. Moran and L. F. Pelton were chosen delegates to the Congressional Convention.

Young Democracy Assembly Nominations.

The Assembly Nominating Conventions of the Young Democracy were held last evening in the various Assembly districts, with the following results: Second District, Wm. Walsh; Third District, James Hayes; Sixth District, Anthony Miller; Seventh District, Howard T. Marston; Ninth District, Alexander V. Davidson; Eleventh District, John McGowan; Eighteenth District, Leander Buck. In the remaining districts, the Conventions adjourned without nominating.

Republican Mass-Meeting in Brooklyn.

A large meeting of the Republicans of the Western District of Brooklyn was held, last evening, at the corner of Gates and Marcy avenues, under the auspices of the Twenty-first Ward Woodford and Kaufman Club. The principal speaker of the evening was Ex-Gov. HARRIMAN, of New-Hampshire. He reviewed with much ability the history of the Democratic Party in this State and in the country at large, referring, by the way, to the unexpected refutation of the charge of bribery made against WOODFORD by the Democrats, that appeared in the TIMES of yesterday, and concluded by remarking that the contest, all side issues apart, was one between the advocates of an honest vote and the patrons of ballot-box stuffers and repeaters.

After three rousing cheers for WOODFORD and KAUFMAN the audience dispersed.

The Newark Election.

The charter election in Newark, on Tuesday, resulted in such decided Republican gains as to surprise even the Republicans themselves, who had hardly counted upon electing twelve out of thirteen Aldermen. The vote for Auditor (the head of the city ticket) was as follows: DAWES, Republican, 6,800; WEBNER, Democrat, 6,512. DAWES' majority is 2,228, which is a gain of 2,000 over Mayor RICORD'S majority last November. The Independent Democrats elected their candidate in the Twelfth Ward. The Republicans, having carried the other twelve wards, will have a large majority in the Common Council. It will stand eighteen Republicans to eight Democrats. ATWATER, the Republican candidate for Water Commissioner, was elected by a majority of 3,046, and COLBERT, Tax Commissioner, received a majority of 3,344.

Preparing for the Election.

Marshal SHARPE was in consultation yesterday with prominent Republicans of this City respecting the names of persons to be selected as Deputy Marshals, to act under the National Election law next November. None but thoroughly reliable men will be chosen, and the compensation will be about $10 per day. In the neighborhood of 1,000 will be appointed.

Political Brevities.

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Club of the Fifteenth Assembly District held a meeting corner of Eighth-avenue and Thirty-fourth-street, last evening, Mr. GEORGE W. DE CUNHA in the chair. Resolutions were adopted indorsing the State Republican nominations, and pledging the members of the Club to its support. This Club will also give special attention to the prevention of fraudulent voting on the day of election. A number of new members signed the roll, and after brief addresses by Col. HOFFER and Capt. DE CUNHA, the meeting adjourned.

The Fifteenth District Republican Association held a meeting last evening, at No. 248 West Thirty-third-street, President LABAUGH in the chair. A constitution and by-laws were adopted, and 250 copies ordered to be printed. A committee was appointed to select and recommend men to act as Deputy Marshals on election day, after which the meeting adjourned.

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Republican Association of the Seventh Ward held an enthusiastic meeting at No. 182 Orchard-street, last night, Mr. ROSENKRANS presiding. Addresses were delivered by Gen. KRYZANOWSKI, Mr. PEIPERS and others.

The Eleventh Assembly District Republican Association, of which Mr. MARSHALL O. ROBERTS is President, met last evening at 49 Bowery. A large audience was present, and Twenty-second-street. Several new members were elected, and arrangements were made for holding a primary election, should one be called by the General Committee.

At a Convention held at Apollo Hall, last evening, for the Eleventh Assembly District, JOHN E. MCGOWAN received the unanimous nomination of the Young Democracy.

The following will be the representation of delegates of the towns of Suffolk County in County Conventions on the basis of the recent census: Huntington, 11; Smithtown, 2; Islip, 5; Brook Haven, 10; Riverhead, 3; East Hampton, 2; Shelter Island, 1; Southampton, 6; Southold, 7.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

NEW-YORK.

The appointment of Mr. GEORGE S. MCWATTERS to the position of storekeeper, under the New-York Custom-house, was most judicious, and will be heartily approved by those who are familiar with the man and his good deeds. He has been connected with the Police Department of this City for the past twelve years, and never had a charge preferred against him in all that time. Since the war, in addition to his police duties, he has been an indefatigable worker for the interests of sick and disabled soldiers, and the families of those who died in battle. Hundreds of cases have been investigated by him, and relief obtained for the unfortunate, in scores of instances. For these services Mr. MCWATTERS received no remuneration whatever, save the gratitude of those who were the objects of his beneficence. His merits were recognised by the Collector, and hence the offer of an appointment, which was accepted a few days ago.

At the Jefferson Market Police Court, yesterday, before Judge COX, AUGUSTUS SABELLE was charged with attempting to take the life of ANNA LACOSTE, an inmate of a house of ill-repute, No. 159 Greene-street. It appeared that on the previous evening the prisoner had an altercation with her, and produced a knife, with which he threatened to take her life. She fled up-stairs, he following her with a large knife, and she, afraid that he would kill her, jumped through a three-story window into the street. Fortunately, she was uninjured. The prisoner was held in $500 bail.

WILLIAM GINSMAN was brought up at the Jefferson Market Court, yesterday, charged with personating a Deputy Sheriff and obtaining possession of two horses and a set of harness, worth $400, belonging to WILLIAM GUNTHER, No. 37 Sheriff's-lane, West Fifty-second-street. Mrs. QUIN stated that on Tuesday last the prisoner came to her house, representing himself as a Deputy Marshal, with a warrant claiming the possession of the horses. She refused to give them to him, and he, presenting a revolver at her head, took them forcibly. He was arrested by Police Officer SMITH, of the Eighth Precinct, and held for trial.

The ladies of the Church of the Heavenly Rest have formed an association to secure contributions to the construction fund of the church, to organize effort for the relief of the poor and the instruction of the ignorant, &c. With such view a fair will be held by them about the middle of December. Also, on Oct. 20, a member of the Association will give an exhibition of Jarly's wax-works. The officers are: First Directress, Mrs. OGDEN HOFFMAN; Second Directress, Mrs. J. C. Baehe; Secretary, Mrs. Chas. C. Leeds; Treasurer, Mrs. Turnure; Executive Committee, Mrs. T. R. Jackson, Mrs. E. H. Tompkins, Mrs. R. Carter, Mrs. Hildreth, Mrs. Bancker, Mrs. Collingwood, Miss Newman, Miss Hoffman.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Central American Transit Company was held yesterday at No. 56 Exchange-place, for the purpose of consolidating, if possible, the three conflicting interests in the Company. Owing to the absence of the Chairman, Mr. SCHELL, no business was transacted,

Music at Madison-square today.

A meeting of the German Young Men's Christian Association was held last evening at their rooms, No. 69 Ludlow-street, for the purpose of perfecting arrangements for a Fair soon to be held, the object of which is to raise funds to provide suitable accommodations for their mission. Communications were read from officials of sister churches and institutions expressive of their sympathy with the cause and promising material aid. Mr. ATKINSON, the President, announced that a special meeting would be held at the same place on Tuesday evening next.

The ninth annual opening of the regular course of lectures at the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, corner of East Twenty-sixth-street, took place last evening. Prof. HAMILTON, in his introductory address, compared the medical teaching of thirty years ago with that of the present day, and showed the improvements which had taken place in instruction and standard of qualification. Prof. LEWIS P. WHITE, of Buffalo, was to give the course on obstetrics this year, was called out and made a few congratulatory remarks.
